THE FOURTH.

How the Day is Observed in St. Louis.

No Public Celebration—Picnics, Excursions and Fireworks the Chief Excitement.

The Glorious Fourth is being observed today in the quietest manner known in St. Louis since the war. The only formal recognition of the day is the closing of the public buildings, courts, exchanges, etc., and this only serves to make the day more quiet. Persons who were out of bed at midnight, and who were not otherwise occupied, might have known that something was going to happen, from the fact that a number of excited and patriotic gentlemen woke the stillness with the loud resounding musket or the horse pistol. But even this died away soon after midnight and in half an hour the whole city was wrapped in quiet. There was very little revelry, very few people who went home in the small hours because they were detained by a celebration of the Fourth. This morning the stillness was unbroken. People who came down town as early as 7 o'clock met an almost unbroken stillness everywhere. All the stores were closed. The streets were almost empty. The great and hurrying crowd of workingmen and shop girls, which pours down Washington avenue, Fourth and Fifth streets and other thoroughfares, between 7 and 8 o'clock each morning, was not to be met to-day. The stores and workshops were all closed and the girls were enjoying a holiday. In one or two cases the stores were open, but only a clerk or two were visible, who waited long enough to attend to the mail and then vanished in search of amusement.

At this hour the small boy was yet in bed, pedestrians with light clothes being still safe from the sparks of the exploding cracker. Shortly after 8 o'clock the streets became much more crowded. Each of the excursions, of which there were at least a score, were announced to start about this time. This was apparent from the fact that the streets were filled with people hurrying in the direction of either the Union Depot or the Levee. These people were all bent on fun, and carried the evidences of it about them. There was usually a young man, with a blue-ribboned, round-topped hat, who carried a heavily-laden basket, presumably full of edibles. He was accompanied by from one to three young ladies. The girls all wore white dresses, with a difference of opinion as to the color of the sash, blue and pink being the favorite colors. These groups were most numerous, and the peculiarity about them was that they all walked on fast, it being a universal law that everybody starts late to an excursion, rushes with all speed through the streets to the place of departure, and arrives there only to find that the boat or train will leave an hour and a half after the advertised time, and even then will be slow in pulling out. The levee was almost deserted of its usual occupants this morning. In their stead were the white-dressed, strawhatted picnickers, mentioned above, all in their best clothes and all out of breath. A half-dozen boats had steam up at once, and there was considerable confusion about the ceremony of embarkation. This was not diminished by the advent of the small boy, who by this time had arisen from his slumbers. He was on hand, as he is everywhere, with pockets crammed with crackers, torpedoes, "negro-chasers," and the other infernal machines which the city ordinances banish from the streets during 364 days in the year, but which the policeman is instructed to overlook on the "Glorious Fourth." The small boy is not only an expert in the use of these infernal machines, but he always knows when to drop them where they will do the most good. The best place, in his estimation, to deposit an ignited cracker is in close proximity to the cambric skirts of the picnic-going maiden. Torpedoes are only exploded with science, in the urchins' estimation, when they are worked off by the wheels of a vehicle drawn by a particularly restive steed and loaded with peculiarly nervous women and children. The small boy was in full force on the levee and more than one young lady left the city with her lawn tennis dress badly burnt as a result, and with her heart filled with hatred for the boy who did the damage, and for all boys who had not grown sufficiently to have more sense.

THE UNION DEPOT

presented an animated scene this morning. Hundreds of happy picnickers crowded the platforms and waiting-rooms. Extra and special local trains were run on every road. Twelfth street, from Clark avenue, and the Bridge, were lined with gay groups hurrying to the depot. By ten o'clock this morning, notwithstanding the cool weather, 25,000 persons had left the city by trains for the picnic grounds and springs within a radius of twenty miles of the city. By 10 a. m. the various excursions had all left the city, and the streets were as quiet and deserted as a graveyard on a rainy day in fall.

At the Court-house the day was very generally observed. The only officials visible around the building were one or two court-room clerks who had exhausted their stipend in riotous amusement last night and who came down to search the desks for spare cash. At the Post-office the morning delivery was made at 10 a. m. and was attended by as large a crowd as usually frequents the Post-office corners on a Sunday at noon. At the City Hall nobody put in an appearance at all and the building was deserted. At the Four Courts the court-rooms were all deserted. The Police Department offices were all open, but, singularly enough, very few arrests were made, and the usual Fourth of July programme was neglected. All the exchanges closed and business was altogether dead.

THE ORPHANS' PICNIC.

The day abounded in celebrations of all kinds. Prominent among them was the orphans' picnic at the Fair Grounds. Although the day's fun could not be expected to begin before noon, the grounds were crowded at an early hour. The members of the various Catholic societies with their families were in attendance. At least fifteen parishes had separate tables, at which refreshments of all kinds were furnished. The tables were presided over by handsome young ladies, who reaped quite a harvest for the orphans.

The POST-DISPATCH reporter can say that as a usual rule change was seldom received and not often asked for, and that, despite the attractions furnished in the amphitheater, numbers of young men stood around the parish tables all day and seemed to find their principal amusement at them. The programme in the amphitheater opened with an exhibition drill by the St. Xavier Cadets, twenty-four strong, who acquitted themselves very creditably. At 2 p. m. the members of the Missouri Bicycle Club left the Southern, arriving at the grounds three-quarters of an hour later. At 3 o'clock the race was begun, and will not be finished before dark, it being run in three heats. Between the heats were horse and mule races, which caused great amusement. At 3 o'clock possibly 20,000 people were on the grounds, and the crowd was still pouring in. The large crowd was very orderly, and there was no probability of a disturbance of any kind.

THE NATIONAL AMERICANS.

The second annual celebration of Independence Day by the National American Association at O'Fallon Park, in North St. Louis, drew out a large number of people. The day was pleasantly spent, and no disturbance of any kind occurred, which is probably due to the fact that no liquors were allowed on the grounds. Each of the nine subordinate associations had handsome tents erected, presenting a military scene. Rev. Dr. John D. Vincil, State Grand Secretary of the Masonic Grand Lodge, was present, and by special request delivered a brief address touching upon the order, its benefits, progress, etc. During the address the Doctor was frequently applauded. Miss Laura J. Glore sang "The Star-Spangled Banner," accompanied by a chorus of thirteen young ladies attired in costumes representative of the thirteen original States. This was followed by base ball, cricket, croquet and other interesting features. The large crowd in attendance are having a jolly good time.

THE SCOTTISH CLANS.

The Narrow Gauge depot was crowded this morning with clansmen, many of them clad in their Highland costume, on the way to Normandy Groves, to celebrate the day. Trains ran every half hour after eight o'clock this morning and carried out large crowds to the groves. At 10 a. m., when the exercises began, there was a large crowd on the grounds. At 11 a. m. the games began with the boys' race, for boys under 14 years of age. The games will occupy the rest of the afternoon and are very interesting, consisting, among other things, of a three-legged race, sack race, tug-of-war, a piper march, etc.

GOLDEN CROWN DRILL CORPS.

The Golden Crown Corps, Knights of Pythias, of this city, are enjoying themselves at the Belleville Fair Grounds. Trains left the Union Depot well crowded at 8 o'clock and every hour since. The exercises opened at 10 a. m. with a grand parade of all the uniformed knights and members on the ground. The day's fun will consist of athletic games and sports of all kinds. An especial feature, which occurs late in the day will be a drill open to all uniformed drill corps and divisions.

THE SHAW CLUB

left the foot of Vine street on the steamer Chouteau this morning, going down on its excursion to Shaw's Grove, thirty-two miles distant from the city. A large crowd of ladies and gentlemen were on board and the outlook for a fine day's sport was very good.

THE ST. LOUIS GUN CLUB

is indulging in its annual shoot at Compton Avenue Park to-day. A large crowd is in attendance, and the classes are all well in [illegible]. Up to the time of going to press the [illegible] being for the city and the insurance [illegible] not been decided.

The Young Men's Temperance Union [illegible] up on the steamer Colorado to [illegible] Grove, north of Alton. The boat [illegible] foot of Washington avenue shortly [illegible] noon, laden with pleasure-seekers. [illegible] ter's Park, Baden, the Holy [illegible] Church is holding its annual [illegible] Ann's [illegible] Cave, [illegible] Orphans' picnic [illegible] held at [illegible].

THE PICKWICK.

At the Pickwick two matinees were given at 1 and 3 p. m., which were attended by a large number of poor children for whose benefit they were given. The usual performance will be given to-night. At Uhrig's Cave the Ford Opera Company will appear in "Patience," and a display of fire-works will be given between the acts.

At Sportsmen's Park, on Grand avenue, a grand display of fire-works will be given at 8 p. m., among them ten set pieces, especially prepared for the occasion.

At Schnaider's an especial display of fireworks will be given to-night.

The weather is phenomenal, being clear and cool, and is just the day for enjoyment, as is manifested by the large attendance at all picnics and excursions.

ACCIDENTS.

An eight-year-old son of Chas. H. Turner was accidentally shot in the head this morning by a playfellow. A serious wound was the result, but after the bullet was extracted the doctors say he will recover.

Last evening at 8:30 o'clock a twelve-year-old lad named Thomas Leonard, living at No. 1501 Biddle street, while playing with some fire-works was severely burned. A companion set the inflammable material on fire as Leonard was bending over it, and it resulted in his face and body being seriously injured.

Last evening as a festive youth was ushering in the National holiday by firing off an antiquated horse-pistol he accidentally shot Mrs. Christian Blass in the thigh. The lady was sitting in front of her residence, No. 1324 North Sixteenth street, and the boy was playing in a vacant lot opposite. A doctor was called, who extracted the bullet.

"HE'LL ANSWER, CAP'N,

If He Is Asked Any Questions Down in Chetopa, Kansas."

He wore a black alpaca coat which continually fell half-way down his back, and a white vest, in the 14-inch diameter arm-holes of which he suspended two sun-browned fists. He was evidently a farmer, and made his business known sans ceremonie.

"I'm from Chetopa, Kansas. My name's A. Adams. I hear you've got a hoss-thief here that the people in our county want to see." He was given a ticket to the hold-over, and when told that the jail, which he passed, contained murderers who have been awaiting trial for years he burst out:

"Gee-whilliken-cracken! I don't know how you folks do, but no murderers live in our county very long after they are caught." The prisoner refused to answer a question put to him, and Chief Huebler said to the visitor, "You can't make the man answer."

"Well, maybe you can't in this atmosphere; but we lost several horses while that man was living in our county, and let me tell you, Cap'n, for a dead certainty, that that man will answer any question we put to him when he gets down to Chetopa." A. Adams winked slyly and went through a short pantomime, during which the looker-on imagined he heard a dull thud.

ABOUT TOWN.

THE Lindell glass blowers, under the guidance of Frank Gutsch and Henry Peters, visited the public institutions yesterday in a body.

MESSRS. OHNMACHT & KOPPE have taken charge of the Catalpa Street Swimming School, refitted the cabins and basins and provided it with a large corps of teachers and attendants. This is now the only bathing resort in the southern part of the city.

AT the last stroke of the bell that ushered in the anniversary of American Independence last night a historical flag was spread to the breeze over Hotel Hunt, while fireworks lighted the night from the roof. The flag was presented to Mr. Quinn, the proprietor, by Mr. P. J. Kennedy, of this city, and is the identical one which floated over the Dublin Castle of Dunboyne, when owned by him, several years ago.

THE DOCTORS' FEES.

How Bliss Came to Manage the Garfield Case.

The Threatened Fight Over the Physicians' Bills—Washington News.

The Garfield Bills.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—One of the coming fights in Congress will be over the amounts allowed by Congressman Taylor's committee for the compensation of the physicians who were in attendance upon Gen. Garfield during his last illness. Congressman Blackburn, it is said, will make a personal attack upon the character and standing of Dr. Bliss. It is also understood that he will revive the statement of Dr. Baxter that Dr. Bliss forced himself into the case, and that he took charge of it against the wishes of Mrs. Garfield and the President. The fact that Mrs. Garfield has written a qualified indorsement of certain statements made upon this subject by Dr. Boynton will be used as a means of emphasizing the attack to be made upon this physician.

PROCTOR KNOTT,

an associate of Blackburn, said that he had no doubt that Congress would finally pass the bill, but he believed that it would be the dearest money that the physicians have ever earned in their lives. A friend of Mrs. Garfield, who is now in the city, says that Mrs. Garfield regrets very much that she has allowed her name to be drawn into this controversy. She had no idea when she gave a qualified indorsement to Dr. Boynton's statement that this indorsement would ever reach the public, but now that it has she is using her influence, in an indirect way through Col. Rockwell, to have all contest avoided. She is particularly anxious that no objection shall be made to the bill as it is presented—that is to say, no objection based upon anything she may have said or done. It is her desire to have as little of a personal character involved in this discussion as is possible. Congressman Blackburn, however, has given fair notice of what he intends to do, and if he carries it out a very lively controversy will follow.

SECRETARY LINCOLN,

who was responsible for the employment of Dr. Bliss, told a friend the other night that Dr. Bliss was officially placed in charge of the case. The history that Mr. Lincoln gave to this friend is as follows: He said that Dr. Bliss was the only physician that was called in the case at first. He (Mr. Lincoln) sent his own carriage for him. Dr. Bliss, in response to the call of Mr. Lincoln, went to the depot, and there, being the only physician regularly called by anyone in authority, he took charge. All of the other physicians who came into the case on the 2d of July came as volunteers. No one sent for them. Mr. Lincoln says that Dr. Bliss remained in charge of the case without any question on the part of any of the doctors who came in as volunteers during Saturday. Sunday morning it was very evident that there were too many physicians in the case. There was a cabinet consultation upon the subject. Mr. Lincoln informed his [illegible] of his employment of Dr. Bliss, [illegible] action was approved by them. [illegible] Col. Rockwell was sent for. Mr. [illegible] is a man of great delicacy and de[illegible] of character. He desired to find [illegible] whether the employment of Dr. Bliss [illegible] be agreeable to Mrs. Garfield, and if he [illegible] he (Mr. Lincoln) would notify Dr. [illegible] once and have him leave the case. As [illegible] not a time for standing upon any cer[illegible] Col. Rockwell was called into the cab[illegible] room and informed of Mr. Lincoln's ac[illegible] the approval of the Cabinet, and he was requested to see Mrs. Garfield and ask her if she approved of it also. Col. Rockwell took charge of this matter, and while Mr. Lincoln is not yet clear that he came back and said that Mrs. Garfield did approve, he yet is clear that the Cabinet was not notified of any dissatisfaction of the presence of Dr. Bliss in the house as the chief surgeon.

THE ACTION OF THE CABINET

then being unquestioned, even by the remotest suggestion or hint, Dr. Bliss was requested to associate with him such physicians as he thought would best aid in the case. The then Secretary of the Navy (Hunt) and the Secretary of War called on Dr. Bliss and suggested to him the names of the Surgeon General of the Army and the Surgeon General of the Navy. Dr. Bliss replied that he would be glad to have with him the Surgeon General of the Army, but that, for personal reasons, he could not associate with him the Surgeon General of the Navy. This request on the part of Secretary Hunt was then withdrawn. Secretary Hunt, before leaving this city, authorized Mr. Lincoln to use his name in support of this statement as to the official employment of Dr. Bliss. When the first rigor came the Cabinet suggested the employment of

DR. HAYES AGNEW AND DR HAMILTON.

This was cheerfully agreed to by Dr. Bliss. The Cabinet, in summoning Drs. Agnew and Hamilton, according to Mr Lincoln, were actuated by a desire of having such surgical assistance as would disarm all possible criticism and give confidence upon the part of everyone, even the most carping of critics, that the president was in good hands. This little bit of history will be made official in point of time, and will probably be developed in connection with the discussion of this case in the coming debate in congress. There will also be exhibited in this debate the record of the opinions of some of the most eminent surgeons in the world, approving of the treatment of Gen. Garfield, and adding that the prevalent belief among the medical fraternity to-day is that the wound was hopeless from the first, and that there was no way of treating it now known to modern surgery that could have reached any different result. The discussion, when it opens, will probably be very interesting, because, on the other hand, the friends of Dr. Boynton and Dr. Baxter are pretty strongly fortified, and as the element of personal bitterness promises also to enter into the discussion, the debate will probably be one that will attract a good deal of attention.

THE LOGAN INFLUENCE.

It Will Not Be Exerted—The Contest for the Senatorship.

CHICAGO, July 4.—Speaking of the election of the United States Senator to succeed David Davis, Senator Logan says it is a matter in which he proposes to take no part whatever. His hands are off and he proposes to keep them so. If he has any preference no one will ever know it. As this is the first statement Logan has made in this connection it will be of interest to the several contestants for the Senatorship, some of whom have been assuming to possess what is known as the Logan influence.

ALL "wants" ten cents.

PROHIBITION.

The Brewers in Iowa Despondent Over the Adoption of the Amendment.

MCGREGOR, IA., July 4.—The brewers of Iowa, since the adoption of the prohibitory amendment to the Constitution of the State by such a large majority, are despondent. To say that they take this defeat in good part is very much from the mark. They appreciate fully the situation much better than the temperance people generally suppose. They fully understand that this amendment being adopted in the first place ruins their business, and practically destroys the value of their properties that they have spent thousands of dollars in building, and many the labor of a lifetime. There are two sides to this question. These breweries were built under the sanction of the law. The law told these men, "you put your money and labor into breweries and you shall be protected." But the voice of the people, expressed last Tuesday by a majority of over 40,000, is supreme, and these men must bow to this power. The main struggle in this contest is yet to be fought, and that is in the enforcement of the laws that are to be enacted to carry out the provisions of this amendment. The temperance people are undoubtedly aware that the enforcement of these laws depends entirely upon them. No one that voted against the adoption of this amendment will take any part in the enforcement of these laws. The task will be found to be a great one, and one that will require nerve and energy to accomplish. Let our temperance friends understand that they cannot now sit down and say that the job is done, for if the laws that are to be enacted are not enforced this whole matter will be a most dismal farce. It is to be hoped that the amendment people by forcing this question upon our State have accomplished a great work for the cause of temperance and sobriety, but at present it is not apparent that they have. Yet we believe that the people at large are in favor of giving the amendment a fair chance now that it has been adopted, and are open to conviction and sincerely hope that it will accomplish for good order and decency all that its friends claim for it.

THE LONDON TIMES.

It is Victimized for a Fourth Time By an Employe.

NEW YORK, July 4.—In its issue of June 12 the London Times was for the fourth time victimized by the audacious employe who has been slipping the most abominable languages into the sober columns of "the Thunderer." The ingenious rascal, bent either on malicious mischief or having some private grudge to gratify, has taken from the vocabulary of the slums the foulest words in the language, and has fitted them into speeches delivered in Parliament, into book notices, and even into religious announcements. Of course it is impossible for him to manipulate the types until after the proofs have passed through the proof-readers' hands. It is evident that he does his work after the matter has been corrected and the type is ready for the "form." Although the Times has made searching investigations, and has exercised the utmost vigilance since the first piece of deviltry came to notice, it has been able neither to find out the perpetrator nor to discourage frequent repetitions of his exploits. It is said that the editors of the Times take it up with fear and trembling every morning, expecting to discover some fresh indecency. The last item embellished by this unknown artist was a modest little advertisement of a book, in the column of literary announcements, and the way the scoundrel improved it was calculated to make the hair on the head of the average British citizen stand on end. The advertisement as it was intended to appear was as follows:

"Every Day Life in Our Public Schools. Sketched by head scholars, with a glossary of some words in common use in those schools; edited by Charles Eyre Pascoe, with numerous illustrations; containing also Henry Irving's dissertation on acting. Church Times—'A capital book for boys.' Record—'The book will make an acceptable present.'"

The transformation wrought by the mysterious individual aforesaid consisted simply in the substitution for the word "acting" of a word which is never seen in print. The "ad" was stuck away in the middle of a column and was not discovered until all of the large first edition had been scattered broadcast. In the second edition, however, the notice was curtailed by so much as refers to Irving's dissertation. The Times had better send for that great moral detective, Anthony Comstock.

"OLD ABE."

The Man Who Carried the Eagle Through the War.

ATCHISON, KAS., July 4.—A. H. Dillon, of Sycamore Springs, died last Thursday on his farm. Death was caused by a gun-shot wound received during the war. He was a member of the Eighth Wisconsin Infantry and had charge of "Old Abe," the noted eagle carried during the war by that regiment. He commenced immediately after the war to prosecute his pension claim, and went through the routine of proof five different times, and died without a pension.

PRESSED cigarettes, made of finest tobacco.

A Violent Storm.

COLUMBUS, KAS., July 4.—A terrific wind storm, the heaviest ever witnessed in this section, passed over this city this evening about 6 o'clock, followed by a heavy rain and hail storm. A number of buildings, mostly outhouses and barns, were blown down. One residence was leveled to the ground, slightly injuring a couple of children. The storm was not in the nature of a cyclone, but a violent wind passed from the north and northeast to the southeast.

Brickmakers' Strike.

DENVER, July 4.—Seven hundred and fifty brickmakers, representing forty-two yards in this city, have struck for an advance of 50 cents. The employers refuse to give it. All the yards are dow shut down. It is estimated that there will be a demadd for 90,000,000 brick here this season.

OBY OWEN.

More Property Discovered Belonging to the Defaulting Teller.

The Third National Bank directors have succeeded in unearthing another piece of property which Oby E. Owen, the defaulting teller, had acquired with the embezzled funds of the bank. A lot of fifty feet on Franklin avenue, in the immediate vicinity of the Owen residence, was purchased last fall by Owen of Mr. Bernheimer. He paid $4,000 in cash for it, and did not record it. The bank attorneys, Overall & Judson, as soon as this discovery was made, took steps to have the transfer recorded, and then attached the property in the name of the bank. The attachment suits thus far have covered about $30,000 worth of property which, added to the $30,000 bond of the receiving teller, will reduce the bank's loss considerably. Although the prisoner has maintained the utmost reticence as to the disposition of the embezzled funds, it is not believed by the directors that much money is concealed. They are, nevertheless, greatly dissatisfied at Owen's course and demeanor since the discovery and arrest. The impression prevails that his conduct will not secure for him the slightest degree of leniency, and when the time comes for arraignment at the bar of the Federal Court he will be punished with little consideration. The minimum sentence under the Federal statute is five years in the penitentiary. The prosecution in the State court will be abandoned. Owen has not yet been able to furnish bond.

AN opinion from one whose experience the expression thereof is always in order. Mr. Hiram B. Ferguson, a member of the Supreme Court bar of the State of New York, whose office is at No. 287 Broadway, New York City, says: "I consider St. Jacobs Oil a most wonderful remedy. I had been a sufferer from rheumatism for years and probably endured as much misery from that disease as any man can stand. I tried many of the so-called remedies without any relief. Finally, I used St. Jacobs Oil, which gave me almost instant relief. I found it a safe, sure and pleasant remedy. I believe it to be an infallible medicine. It is a pleasure to me to recommend St. Jacobs Oil to all who suffer and need its good services."

AMERICANS IN LONDON.

Theatrical Chit-Chat—Introducing the Cable Street Railroad.

NEW YORK, July 4.—A London dispatch to one of the papers says: Mr. Henry Abbey, the famous theatrical speculator and manager, is in London pulling his various wires. His star for this season will be Mrs. Langtry, the professional beauty, who has now quite a reputation among certain circles as an actress. She is playing a very successful provincial tour, and it is believed will prove equally attractive in the United States. Mr. Abbey's greatest enterprise, however, is the engagement of Mr. Henry Irving and the Lyceum company for 1883, to open in October of that year at New York or Boston, taking in, on tour Chicago, possibly San Francisco, including a brief visit to Canada. Mr. Irving will take his holiday this year on the Atlantic in the month of August. During the four weeks at his disposal he will cross to New York, and in the few days of his sojourn in the United States he hopes to visit Saratoga, Long Branch and Niagara. He will be the GUEST OF MR. VANDERBILT.

On Saturday next he celebrates the hundredth performance of "Romeo and Juliet" by a banquet on the stage at the Lyceum. He will count as his guests the Lord Mayor and and the poet Tennyson. Mr. Abbey appears to be delighted with Irving personally and artistically. "The Romany Rye," by Mr. Lewis, at the Princess' Theater, is a success. It is not as good a piece as the "Lights o' London," but it promises to have as great a run. Mr. Wilson Barrett, the actor-manager, who plays the title role, recently purchased the pretty home of George Eliot, at North Bank, St. John's Wood, where he and his wife (Miss Heath), who made a fortune out of Wills' "Jane Shore," entertain their friends with regal liberality. Mr. Gooch, who rebuilt the Princess' Theater, ruined himself in the operation. Mr. Wilson Barrett stepped in and is making his pile. Such is theatrical life. Everybody is glad to hear of the recovery of Mr. Booth's daughter, whose illness threatened to postpone his arrival in this country. It is now quite settled that he will be here this week. He opens on Saturday next in "Richelieu" at the Adelphi Theater. In the meantime Mr. Pateman (well known in the great West) has been rehearsing for him. Mr. and Miss Pateman have both played in his company on this side of the Atlantic. An excellent company has been engaged to support the American tragedian, and though the Adelphi stage is unaccustomed to the classic drama, it is not unlikely that will do good business. The only drawback is that he appeals to a different class to those who generally support the Adelphi. At the same time he made so good a name for himself among general play-goers that many of his admirers may be expected to find their way to his new quarters. During Mr. Irving's absence in America Mr. Abbey will take the management of the Lyceum Theater here; that is, he will be responsible for it. He will bring over an American company, and thus add a new interest to the Irving engagement, seeing that the American company will open simultaneously on this side with the appearance of Mr. Irving in America. Mr. Barnum is here to make arrangements for his show in London and Paris. At present he has not been able to find a building large enough for his purpose. The Agricultural Hall might have suited him, but it appears to be engaged at the period when he requires it.

MR. HANSCOME,

an engineer well known in San Francisco, called on me last week. He has come to construct the first Hallide system of cable tramcars in England, similar to those already existing in Chicago. The scene of operations is to be Highgate. After a considerable fight among vested interests the Government granted its consent to a bill for the introduction of this new system of locomotion. If it does not frighten horses too much it will be a success, more especially on the hilly roads of the suburbs. Mr. Hanscome appears to be a gentleman who thoroughly understands his business, and he may well feel proud of the opportunity to exhibit his skill in this center of engineering operations.

Americans in London cannot, as a rule, complain of their reception. Mr. Lowell, the fine-art printer of Boston, Mass., has opened a small exhibition in a room at the Fine Arts Society. His show consists of Christmas cards and tiles. They are exquisite examples of American genius. One day last week the Prince and Princess of Wales went to see them. Their royal highnesses were delighted with them, and said so.

THE PRIZE DRILL.

The Contestants at the Indianapolis Encampment—The Drill Begun.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 4.—To-day the drill contest between the infantry companies commenced at the encampment. There was a large attendance of spectators. Nineteen first-class companies are entered for the contest. First money, $1,500; second money, $1,000; third money, $500. The most noted companies who will struggle for the prize are as follows:

THE CHICKASAW GUARDS,

of Memphis, organized June 30, 1874. They have been prize-winners in nine competitions, taking seven first prizes. The present officers of the company are S. T. Carnes, Captain; W. L. Clapp, First Lieutenant; T. A. Lamb, Second Lieutenant. Their uniform is a dark blue cut-away coat trimmed with scarlet and gold, pants about two shades lighter than their coats with scarlet stripe, dark blue hat of Seventh Regiment pattern, with red and white cock feather plumes.

CRESCENT RIFLES,

New Orleans, La., organized about two years since, are officered as follows: Harry Allen, Captain; Oscar Putnam, First Lieutenant; Oscar B. Penrose, Second Lieutenant, and F. S. Poifrey, Third Lieutenant. The Crescents were the winners of the first prize at Louisville last week, after a close contest with the Chickasaws, Porters and Quapaws. The uniform of the company consists of dark blue coats, of the Seventh New York Regiment cut, with light olive pants, white and gold epaulettes, and helmets with blue and white plumes. It's a daisy company, and don't you forget it.

THE PORTER RIFLES,

Nashville, Tenn., organized May 11, 1874, and named in honor of Joseph D Porter, then Governor of the State. This company has been in twelve competitive drills, and won eight first prizes. George Reyer is Captain; R. T. Creighton, First Lieutenant; J. W. Hunter, Second Lieutenant. The uniform of the Porters is very neat, consisting of blue coat, pants of lighter shade, with canary-colored facings and stripe, canary-colored plume, blue tipped, and fatigue uniform of gray, with black facings.

COMPANY K, ST. LOUIS,

First Regiment of Missouri (National Guard, organized 1878. This company has won three cash prizes, one at Atlanta, one at St. Louis, and one at Nashville. Geo. H. Platt is Captain and Charles M. Maural First Lieutenant. Their uniform is blue, with buff and gold trimmings, white cross-belts and plumes.

QUAPAW GUARDS,

Little Rock, Ark., organized October 1, 1880. It has been in only three competitive drills, victorious in two. John Waters is Captain, S. J. Churchill and J. J. Johnson Lieutenants.

THE FOLGER CORPS

is a splendid company from New York, and came here determined to carry off the first prize. They are tipped to win, but will have to be nearly if not quite perfect to get away with the Southern brigade.

LOUISIANA RIFLES,

commanded by Capt. Woods, has recently been organized. They came just for fun, and to defeat the Porters if they can, which is not likely. The uniform of the company is the regulation United States uniform, fine material.

ASHBURY CADETS,

organized in 1881, composed of handsome young men, ranging from sixteen to twenty-one. They have won four prizes in competing with local organizations, but will hardly get a place here. Capt. Frank W. Joyce commands. Their uniform is West Point gray cloth blouse and pants and blue parade cap.

THE M'KEEN CADET

was organized in June, 1879, and named in honor of Hon. W. R. M'Keen. They have won three prizes in five contests and hold a high, haughty head. M. N. Smith is Captain, S. C. McKeen First Lieutenant and Wm. Strange Second Lieutenant. The uniform of the company is gray, slashed with black and gilt, with white cross and waist belts. They present a neat and handsome appearance.

From Love to Hate.

From a Recent Rome Letter.

A few years ago there was an eminent American painter, whose pictures are ranked high in this and other countries. He was noted in Rome for his indifference to the belles in vogue. One season a mysterious German widow appeared in the English and American set of distinguished figure and stately manners. She was at once set down as a princess, at least. The American was straightway fascinated with the reserve of the stranger. He invited her to sit for a portrait. He paid court diligently and incessantly; but it seemed without effect. Presently the lady set off on a tour to Venice. She was no sooner settled there than the painter was at work on the mosaics of St. Marco. Persistence like this won its reward. But the lady had to relinquish much to gratify her love. She was a countess, inheriting a fortune of $20,000 a year so long as she remained single. If she married she was to receive a mere pittance—something like $1,000. The announcement made a great stir in Rome. The painter and his wife returned, set up a luxurious home in a wing of one of the statliest of the old palaces, and everybody chanted the praise of the couple. It was soon remarked, however, that the painter became more absorbed in his art than before; that he was never present at his wife's fine dinners; that he lived in his studio, and that as he seemed to grow colder and colder his wife seemed to grow more passionately fond of him. She became the wonder and admiration of Rome. In the studio her delicate hands saved the painter every detail of manual toil. She touched the colors, oiled the canvas, and what not, that only those can understand who have seen the painter in his inspired moments.

Suddenly there was a violent explosion. The husband left his wife's house, and Rome was for a moment breathless. The curious sought Miss Brewster, as the painter had been in a certain sort her protege; but the kind little woman refused to lay the miserable scandal bare for the buzzards of the Pincian Hill and the Corso cafes. No romance that I know contains a chapter so complicated and exciting. The estrangement of the lovers began on the wedding day. On the bridal journey, as the two were leaving the sandy wastes of Berlin, the wife suddenly opened the door of the coupe and attempted to throw herself from the train rushing over a long trestle at the rate of forty-five miles an hour. The horrible suspicion that her husband's motives were mercenary was alleged as the cause of this act. Had the rash woman succeeded the unfortunate painter would have been hanged as his wife's murderer—the end she afterward owned she sought. The husband, brooding over this hideous opening of married life, grew to hate the woman he was tied to more and more, until to be beneath the same roof became insupportable. The two are now living in Rome separate—she adoring her last lover, and he detesting Rome because she is in it. Those who know them often see the wife, as the painter saunters outside the walls, furtively following and watching him. She is firmly convinced that jealous women separated them, while he refuses to speak on the subject. The verdict of the world is, however, against the man. He selfishly deprived her of a princely income, and now doles out a pitiful allowance to eke out the $1,500 to which her $20,000 per annum was cut down when she married him.

Summer Night Concert.

Arrangements have been made for a grand summer evening concert at Schnaider's on the 20th of the present month. The Excelsior Quartet, composed of Messrs. Phil Branson, Joe Saler, Nat Hazard and Web. Norcross will furnish the vocal selections for the occasion, and the St. Louis Grand Orchestra, directed by Mons. Louis Mayer, will contribute the instrumental portion of the programme.

DETECTIVES BADGER and Warren made an important capture yesterday in the person of Eugene Delearey, alias Henry Wilson, an ex-convict who has done time for burglary and larceny. About six weeks ago H. J. Muth, of 1216 Pine street, and Allah H. Straubel, of 1611 Washington avenue, each lost a suit of clothes by the sneak game. The officers have been on the lookout, and Delearey tried to pawn the clothes just as the officers came in sight, but he evaded them. He did not return to his professed home, Christy avenue, between Seventh and Eighth, where he kept a restaurant, but he opened a new refectory at 1229 Poplar, and the officers made a descent with success.

ABOUT 5 o'clock this morning a young man named Kirksick was caught in the machinery of the St. Louis Lead and Oil Company, and, but for the prompt action of the engineer, would have been killed. He was taken to the City Dispensary in the Third District patrol wagon, and his wounds were dressed.

A Somnambulist Bitten by a Moccasin.

Homer Letter in the Atlanta Constitution.

A man named Richard Meeler, living near Richey's mill not far from Homer, Georgia, states that during the night he had a dream, in which he thought there was a terrible storm rising, and that, for his safety, it would be necessary for him to go down to the mill, some fifty yards away, and hide himself under the mill. There were a great many rocks, stumps and shafts of mill machinery under the mill, and while stumbling round under the mill, and near the water-wheel, he was bitten by a moccasin snake in several places on the foot. He then went into a lint-room, in the gin-house near by, and tied two handkerchiefs which he had in his pockets round the limb, one above the other, and started home. He thinks that he was awakened from his dream about the time he got back to the house. He then told the family that he had been bitten by a snake, but not to be alarmed. Dr. V. D. Lockhart came to his assistance, and he is now in a fair way to recover. From the best information that can be obtained Meeler is a steady, honest and withal a very intelligent man. His family say that he is in the habit of walking in his sleep frequently.

GUITEAU'S GRAVE.

The Body of the Brutal Assassin Still in Jail.

Washington Special to Philadelphia Times, 1st.

The closing scene in the Guiteau tragedy was enacted at the Jail to-day, when the remains of the assassin were entrenched securely in one of the wings of the gloomy structure, where they will be constantly under surveillance and out of reach of adventurous body-snatchers. In deference to the expressed wish of the relatives the funeral services were of a private nature, the only persons present besides the friends of the deceased and Jail officials being two enterprising newspaper correspondents. At half-past 3 o'clock this afternoon a little party of five moved solemnly and slowly out of the office of Warden Crocker, directing their steps toward the chapel in the east wing of the Jail, where all that was earthly of Guiteau, the assassin, lay. They were Rev. W. W. Hicks, the assassin's spiritual adviser; John W. Guiteau, Mrs. George Scoville and her daughter, Bertha, and Miss Chevallier, of Boston, who labored so earnestly to secure a reprieve for the condemned wretch.

Under directions of the Warden several prisoners had taken all the available chairs about the building up into the chapel for the accommodation of those present at the ceremony, but only a dozen were necessary to seat those who desired to obtain admission. In the center of the room, on a plain wooden settee, was the imitation rosewood coffin which contained the body, the lid having been down to conceal the features from view. All around the room were evidences of the autopsy held yesterday afternoon. A large tin bucket filled with bloody water was a conspicuous object. In one corner was a pile of old ropes, ladders, pulleys and blocks, indicating that the room was devoted to storage purposes, and on the walls were inscribed the names and regiment of a number of the soldiers who have been occupants of this room since the 2d of last July.

It was amid such surroundings that the funeral of the dead assassin was to come off, and the desolate appearance seemed in every sense appropriate to the occasion. Mrs. Scoville attired in deep mourning and black crape bonnet, a thick black veil concealing her face, sat a few feet from the coffin, her little daughter with dilated eyes, being close at her side. Miss Chevallier, who sat on the left of Mrs. Scoville, wore a blue serge costume, with white lace collar and cuffs, the collar being fastened with a pin composed of three imitation daisies. John Guiteau was beside his sister and wore a black coat and pantaloons and a white duck vest. A few feet away stood the minister who had devoted himself so faithfully to the wretch whom all good people execrated, apparently intent upon making the service as solemn as possible, for he stood almost motionless for fully five minutes beside the coffin of the dead man. Behind Mr. Hicks on a long bench were grouped Gen. Crocker, Woodward and Eldridge of the Jail guard; Commissioner Stoutenburgh, of the work-house; Engineer Ward, of the jail, and the Times correspondent.

At a sign from Mrs. Scoville a burly black man appeared, bearing in his arms three floral tributes, comprising a cross, crown and an anchor resting upon a pillow. The latter emblem bore the inscription in blue immortelles: "Poor Charley! Gone to glory." After they had been arranged upon the coffin Mr. Hicks offered a fervent prayer, asking forgiveness for the dead man and that his sin might not be visited upon his relatives, closing in a most impressive manner with the Lord's Prayer. When he uttered the words, "Lead us not into temptation," he emphasized them, whereupon John Guiteau bowed his head in mute assent. Mrs. Scoville remained perfectly quiet during the short service, with her face buried in a handkerchief, but did not cry audibly. The ceremony was closed with the familiar quotation, and at the request of Warden Crocker the room was vacated by all outsiders, leaving the family alone. The outer door was closed for a few minutes, but no demonstration was made. Not more than five minutes had elapsed ere Gen. Crocker was notified that the body was at his disposal, and five stalwart colored prisoners were pressed into service as pall-bearers. They picked the casket up as though little mindful of the contents and hurried down the steps from the chapel as quickly as possible. It was then placed on the elevator and taken below to the basement of the building, where the grave had been prepared.

"Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
Was not written of the soul,"

There was no further ceremony at this point, and the only witnesses of the spot where the remains of the assassin are buried were Mr. Hicks, John Guiteau, Gen. Crocker and his brother, Deputy Warden Russ, your correspondent and two prisoners who had been detailed to fill up the grave. The coffin was covered with heavy boards before the earth was put in, and, as the soil was of a gravelly nature where the interment was made, the sound of stones falling upon the coffin rang out with startling distinctness. Owing to the small size of the elevator leading down stairs, when the coffin was taken down it was found necessary to stand it on end, and the body was moved out of position a trifle.

The gloomy surroundings adjacent to the grave of the dead murderer will not likely be forgotten by those who witnessed the burial, all of whom were pledged to secrecy before being admitted to the room in which the grave was dug. A guard is necessarily always on duty in this portion of the Jail, so that no detail will be required to keep a watch for intruders. It was 4 o'clock when the first spadeful of earth rattled upon the coffin, and Mr. Irving Crocker, son of the General, called attention to the fact that it was the same time that the assassin's victim was buried at Cleveland, O. After seeing the coffin entirely covered up, John Guiteau and his party returned to the city.

Dr. Hicks says to-day that by a preconcerted arrangement Guiteau gave the signal for his own execution. The paper he was to drop he left in his cell and when the cap was being adjusted he said: "Hicks, I left my signal paper." Hicks handed him the manuscript of the verses. "I don't want to lose that," said Guiteau. "Never mind," replied Hicks. So when the time had came Guiteau said: "I'm going to glory. Ready," dropped the paper and all was over. The paper was returned to Dr. Hicks afterward. This may be relied on as the accurate account of Guiteau's last words and acts.

Curing Hay.

From the New York Tribune.

The English farmers are threatened with the ruin of their hay crop, owing to the cold and rainy weather. Their attention is therefore called by the press to an invention for drying hay in the stack. The principle of the invention is by powerful fans to suck away the air from a hollow running half way up the middle of the rick, the consequent rushing in of the outside air through the hay at once reducing the temperature of the mass. The crop upon the farm of Mr. Allender, upon which experiments are now being made, is exceptionally heavy and juicy; it has been cut, carried and stacked in persistently showery weather, so that the action of the fan diminishing the temperature of the stack has been satisfactorily exemplified. "On one occasion having reached 165 degrees," it is declared by the Pall Mall Gazette, "it was reduced to 96 degrees in an hour and a quarter.

Baptizing Scene in Georgia.

From the Columbus Enquirer.

One of the most important events in the history of the colored church in this section was the big baptizing at Watkinsville, Ga., recently, when 103 persons were immersed. Nearly every darky for miles around witnessed the ceremony, besides a good sprinkling of whites. A pond had been dammed up in a branch, over a muddy bottom, and after a few penitents had stirred up the soil the water was a perfect loblolly and needed straining to render it even partially clear. Converts who went in robed in spotless white came out dripping with mud and slime. All sizes and ages were immersed, ranging from the pickaninny knee high to the gray-haired old man tottering on the brink of the grave. The remarks of the converts were ludicrously amusing, as every one went under the water shouting and exhorting. One old woman yelled out: "I'se wadin' now through the gate of heaben. You sinful niggers out dar can go to hell ef you want to!" One darky discovered his employer looking on, when he sang out: "Mass Rube, hell's your portion, but I is sabed for a crown of glory." A negro woman, as she was being led into the water, noticed some white ladies on the bank, when she yelled out: "Dar am de white folks wid all de spangles and silks and golden slippers, but dey am gwine to de debbil, while me poor dirty nigger is safe in heaben." One of the last converts, seeing the condition of the mud-hole, refused to go in, but a delegation of church members ran him down and he was dragged into the pond and baptized by force.

Alex. Stephens's Generosity.

From the Atlanta Constitution.

Mr. Stephen is well known as a friend of the young and his name is associated with the education of many a boy struggling for a start in the world. But the extent of his good work in this direction is perhaps known to few. There are now no less than fourteen young men and women dependent on his big heart for their education. For some of these he pays merely the tuition and for others all expenses. To each goes a check every month, signed by the nervous hand in the rolling chair. Since he re-entered Congress he has kept at school about this number of pupils, besides bestowing with a too liberal hand his means on various other objects. I suppose Mr. Stephens spends more than his salary, and he has only a modest fortune.

This is given as the explanation of the Chinese custom of stopping the growth of women's feet. In the twelfth century, there reigned in China an Emperor called Tchou-Kung. He was a great tyrant, and he had a wife, Ja-Kya, who was still more despotic and severe than her husband. She was beautiful, but she had crippled feet; in order to hide that defect, she wrapped them in all sorts of bandages and put on little shoes. The ladies of her court hastened to follow her example, and the strange habit has been handed down until now.—[Progress.

LIEBIG MALT EXTRACT.

RECOMMENDED BY PHYSICIANS of the highest eminence on both sides of the Atlantic, as an invaluable Tonic and Restorative in cases of General Debility, Nervous Depression, Enfeebled Constitution and Female Weakness.

NURSING MOTHERS, who suffer from poverty of milk, will find it a specific for their troubles. It stimulates the digestion, sharpens the appetite, invigorates and builds up the entire system, and excites a generous flow of milk.

WEAK AND SICKLY CHILDREN, who suffer from lassitude and weariness, the result of disease, over-study, or nervous strain, will derive substantial benefit from its use. It restores the system to its normal condition and brings back the bloom of youth.

INVALIDS AND CONVALESCENTS will find it admirably adapted for sustaining life, and restoring lost strength. When the stomach is weak and refuses other nourishment the Extract will prove an excellent substitute for food. It neither palls upon the appetite nor offends the taste.

DELICATE FEMALES, who suffer from the weaknesses of their sex, will derive lasting relief from its use. It improves the digestion, purifies the blood, stimulates the appetite, and revives the spirits.

WEAK AND DELICATE PERSONS GENERALLY, who require some artificial restorative—and especially those who are inclined to Consumption—will find this preparation exactly suited to their needs. It is a specific for the Coughs and Nervous Affections usually incident to a low state of the system.

AS A FLESH RESTORER it possesses the highest value. The whole tendency of its action is to stimulate the digestion of fat-producing foods, and its effect is invariably to give fullness and roundness to the female form, and robustness to the masculine frame.

THE LIEBIG MALT EXTRACT is a pure concentrated Fluid Extract of Malt, agreeable to the taste, and free from alcohol. It is readily retained on the stomach and contains none but wholesome and nourishing ingredients. The genuine preparation bears on the label a fine engraved likeness of Baron von Liebig, and a fac-simile of his Signature, as well as that of A. VOGELER & CO., Baltimore, Md., Sole Agents for America.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.—Whereas by a certain deed of trust dated the 10th day of June, A. D. 1876, and recorded in the Recorder's office of Shannon county, State of Missouri, in book 4, at pages 155, 156, 157 and 158, Martha Griffith, a femme sole of the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, did convey to the undersigned the real estate in said deed of trust described as follows, viz.: Lots numbers one (1) and two (2) in township number twenty-nine (29) north of range number five (5) west, containing three hundred and twenty acres, more or less; which said deed was made in trust to secure the payment of a certain promissory note in said deed of trust fully described. And whereas said deed of trust contained a power to said trustee to appoint an attorney in fact to execute said trust in his stead; and whereas said trustee has duly appointed Wm F. Wickham, of the City of St. Louis, State of Missouri, by his certain written instrument, under seal, and recorded in the Recorder's office of Shannon County, State of Missouri, his attorney in fact to execute said trust; and whereas said note is now past due and remains unpaid; Now, therefore, under the provisions of said deed of trust and at the request of the legal holder of said note, I will, on the sell said real estate, at public vendue to the highest bidder, for cash, at the east front door of the Court-house of the city of St. Louis, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 3 o'clock p. m. of that day, for the purposes of said trust.

SHERIFF'S SALE UNDER DEED OF TRUST.—Whereas Charles H. Eldridge, by his deed dated the 9th of June, A. D. 1880, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, in book 631, page 484, conveyed to Theophile Papin in trust the following described real estate lying and being situated in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, to-wit: Lots numbered seventeen (17) and eighteen (18) of and in the subdivision by the Bank of California of lot number thirty (30) in Peter Lindell's second addition to St. Louis, according to a plat of said subdivision filed in the office of the Recorder of Deeds, etc., for the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in plat book No. 11, page No. 84, said lots 17 and 18 fronting together one hundred feet on north side of Laclede avenue, by a depth of 210 feet 2¼ inches to an alley 26 feet wide; which said conveyance was made in trust to secure the payment of two certain promissory notes in said deed described. And whereas one of the said notes remains due and unpaid, and the said Theophile Papin, said trustee, is absent from the State of Missouri and from the United States, and is therefore disabled from carrying out the powers upon him conferred in and by said deed of trust, and the Circuit Court City of St. Louis having made an order on the 15th day of June, 1882, appointing the sheriff of the City of St. Louis trustee, to execute said deed of trust in lieu and place of the original trustee. Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that, at the request of the legal holder of said notes, and by virtue of the said order of court, and in pursuance of the provisions of said deed of trust, the undersigned will, on between the hours of 9 o'clock in the forenoon and 5 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the east front door of the Court-house in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, proceed to sell at public vendue, to the highest bidder, for cash, the above described real estate, to satisfy said notes and the costs of executing said trust.

SATURDAY, THE 15TH DAY OF JULY,

TRUSTEE SALE.—Whereas Bridget Gaughan and Thomas Gaughan, her husband, by their deed of trust dated May 28, A. D. 1870, recorded in the Recorder's office of the county (now city) of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in book 407, page 179, conveyed to Irwin Z. Smith in trust to secure the payment of certain notes therein fully described, the following described piece or parcel of ground, situated in the county of St. Louis and State of Missouri, being lot No. fifty-six (56) as laid down on a plat of East Kirkwood, which said plat is duly of record in the Recorder's office of St. Louis county; said lot is bounded on the north by Gordon street and Lettingwell avenue; east by Holmes avenue, south by Big Bend road and west by Gordon street and lot fifty-seven (57) of said town, containing twelve and thirty-five hundredths (12 35-100) acres, to the center of the street.

And whereas the said Irwin Z. Smith died without having executed said trust, and the undersigned was appointed trustee in place and stead of the said Smith by the Circuit Court of St. Louis County; and whereas the said notes have long since been due and the principal and two interest notes remain unpaid; therefore, at the request of the legal holder of said notes and by virtue of the provisions of said deed of trust, I, the undersigned trustee, will, on between the hours of 10 o'clock in the forenoon and 5 o'clock in the afternoon, at the eastern front of the Court-house in said city of St. Louis, sell the above described property at public vendue, to the highest bidder, for cash, to satisfy said trust.

WEDNESDAY, THE 12TH DAY OF JULY, 1882,

JOHN J. SUTTER, Trustee.

Grether & Boeck, agents, 207 N. Eighth st. 63K

St. Louis, June 16, 1882.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.—Whereas B. Maziere Chambers and Marie C. Chambers, his wife, by their certain deed of trust, dated the 26th day of September, 1878, and recorded in book 6, page 532, of the Recorder's office of the county of St. Louis, Missouri, conveyed to the undersigned trustee their interest in the following described property, to-wit: All that parcel or tract of land, containing one hundred and eighty-three acres and eighty-hundredths of an acre (183 80-100 acres), in section one (1), township forty-six (46), range six (6), the northwest quarter. All that parcel or tract of land, containing sixty acres (60 acres), in section one (1), township forty-six (46), range six (6), the southwest fractional quarter. All that parcel or tract of land containing sixty-seven and seventy-six one-hundredths acres (67 76-100 acres) in section one (1), township forty-six (46), range six (6), the southeast fractional quarter. All that parcel or tract of land containing one hundred and two acres and twenty-four hundredths of an acre (102 24-100 acres) in section one (1), township forty-six (46), range six (6), the north half of the north-east quarter. All that parcel or tract of land containing fifty-seven acres and ninety-hundredths of an acre (57 90-100 acres) in section thirty-five (35), township forty-seven (47), range six (6), the fractional section. All that parcel or tract of land containing ninety-three and seventy-three one-hundredths acres (93 73-100 acres) in section seventeen (17), township forty-seven (47), range seven (7), the southwest fractional quarter. All that parcel or tract of land containing forty-three acres (43 acres) in section eighteen (18), township forty-seven (47), range seven (7), the southeast fractional quarter; and all that parcel or tract of land containing two hundred and ninety-three acres and thirty-four hundredths of an acre (293 34-100 acres) in section twenty (20), township forty-seven (47), range seven (7), the fractional section. All the foregoing mentioned tracts of land being in St. Ferdinand township, county of St. Louis, and State of Missouri. Said conveyance was made in trust to secure the payment of a certain promissory note in said deed described; and whereas said note is past due and unpaid; now, therefore, at the request of the legal holder of said note, and by virtue of the authority vested in me by said deed of trust, I, the undersigned trustee, will offer said property for sale, at public vendue, and sell the same to the highest bidder, for cash, at the front door of the Court-house of St. Louis county (at Clayton), Mo., between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 5 o'clock p. m. of

SATURDAY, THE 15TH DAY OF JULY, 1882,

THE three Police Graces—CARUTH, KERWIN and MCCABE—Grace, Disgrace and Scapegrace.

THIS may be properly called a Glorious Fourth. The thermometer this morning registered 65° at 7 o'clock.

"I AM tired of Sunday school politicians," says the gamblers' Governor. If the gamblers had their way they would abolish Sunday schools entirely.

TO show how ready they are to do it again, the MALLEY boys celebrated their acquittal by opening champagne by the case and paying one of their lawyers $10,000.

INDIANAPOLIS has rather got the inside track in the bologna sausage trade. Under the new Indiana dog law 7,985 esculent canines have been slaughtered in the last six months.

MAJ. JOHN EDWARDS and Gov. CRITTENDEN were somewhat divided on the extinction of JESSE JAMES, but they have come together as Castor and Pollux on the pardoning of the "manly" gamblers.

THE intoxicated fiends and the thoughtless juveniles are at work to-day with their malignant fire-crackers and pistols. The nervous man will find his consolation in glancing over the list to-morrow of split fingers, lacerated ears and mangled noses.

THE managers of the New York and Long Branch Railway, who dumped a train-load of passengers through a bridge last Thursday, have been found guilty of criminal negligence by a Coroner's jury. Now is the time for another display of "Jersey Justice."

WE are not prepared to believe the story that ex-Senator CHRISTIANCY and his wife have been reconciled and have concluded to join hands and jog along the dusty road of life together. The testimony brought out in their protracted divorce suit shows that these people are most excellently adapted to each other.

THE cases against the lottery gamblers will be taken up to-morrow. The testimony will send all the indicted law-breakers to the Penitentiary if they go to trial. They will all plead guilty, we presume, and telegraph to the Humane Governor for pardons. PATE is interested in the business to the extent of forty indictments.

THE man at the far end of the cable is attending to business. He telegraphs that there are 1,580 Irish-American citizens in Dublin without visible occupation. It will probably surprise Queen VICTORIA to hear that fully that number of Irish-Americans are out of employment in New York and are amusing themselves by levying war on Great Britain.

EX-POLICE COMMISSIONER MAXON, in an interview with a POST-DISPATCH reporter to-day recounts the last conversation that he had with CRITTENDEN—just before the issuance of the pardons to the gamblers. We feel sorry for the intelligent man who can read this without agreeing that Mr. PATE'S Governor should be known in the State's history as TOMMY the Little.

MR. JOHNSON, of Lamen, Texas, called on Miss CLARA CHRISTMAS, an eighteen-year-old girl, to explain and apologize for some slanderous remarks that he had made about her. The noble-hearted girl listened to him with gentle patience and then quietly took down a shot-gun and emptied a hand full of slugs into his throat and eyes. JOHNSON is dead and the young lady who gave him the Christmas gift is to some extent vindicated.

DURING a thunder-storm at Bismarck, D. T., yesterday, lightning struck and paralyzed Mrs. DENNY while she was sitting on her husband's lap, and killed the latter instantly. This should be a warning to young wives not to run out and sit in their husband's laps during thunder-storms. It is known that the animal heat arising over animals closely grouped attracts the electric current. When lightning is striking, it is better for people to scatter apart, and if they will insist on keeping close together, the safest place for them on such occasions is in a feather-bed in the middle of a room.

JUDGE BOYLE has ordered a new election for Directors of the St. Louis Fair Association to be held on the 5th of August. The officers illegally elected and counted in by Mr. CHAS. GREEN'S subservient Returning Board last January have been ousted—a very palpable victory for the POST-DISPATCH. It is understood that the same old tickets will be arrayed against each other on the 5th prox. Mr. GREEN, we presume, has purchased and [illegible] stock to re-elect his henchmen [illegible] position as President and of their [illegible] could issue a proclamation [illegible] removal from the Presi- [illegible] two sides to this [illegible] dency at this time will be held to be an act of treason against the Fair and sedition against the city of St. Louis. Mr. GREEN has been at some pains to establish a reputation as a bulldozer, and he ought to maintain it at all hazards.

THE Unionville News Century is a Democratic paper published in a Republican county, and therefore it has a real grievance in the disposal of the county printing. This, it informs us, is done in the Unionville Republican, a paper owned by the county officers and other Republicans, who make something out of the printing by refusing to put it up to the lowest and best bidder. Doubtless there are Republican papers in Democratic counties that would gladly save a good deal to the tax-payers and litigants if allowed to bid on the printing. The State printing was let to the lowest bidder last winter. Under a special law the printing of the legal notices is awarded to the lowest bidder in St. Louis, and by rights the same rule should apply in every county. The public should have the benefit of competition in such matters instead of being taxed to support the organ of a Court-house clique or ring in each county.

WANTED FOR THE FOURTH.

St. Louis, a city of 350,000 inhabitants, and one of the five largest in the Union, is passing the birthday of the Republic without any formal effort to celebrate it. The small boy has, of course, been torturing timid people with the explosion of fire-crackers, torpedoes or other infernal inventions for a day or two, and is now expending the remains of his wealth to continue the racket pro bono publico till nightfall entitles him to the reserve of spectacular fireworks kept for him at home. As the day is a legal holiday, business ceases and people scatter abroad to the beer gardens, the rural picnic grounds or wherever they fancy they can pass the hours most pleasantly, thus leaving the streets and down-town resorts comparatively deserted.

The gray-haired American will shake his head and talk of the decadence of republican spirit and national feeling when he contrasts this apparent slighting of a glorious anniversary with his recollection of how it used to be kept, when the military paraded the streets with thunder of drums and blare of trumpets, and everybody turned out in procession escorting the orator of the day, a carriage load of white-haired soldiers of the Revolution, a larger body of soldiers of the "Second War of Independence," and a galaxy of young ladies in white representing the several States, and guarding another queenly young beauty representing "Columbia" or the "Goddess of Liberty." Our old gentleman will never forget how this primitive pageant impressed the story of the fathers upon his mind, and how, as the procession moved, and the shouts arose, and the minute guns shook the ground beneath him, it all swelled his young heart with a high resolve to dare and do anything for his beloved country. He may not care to hear the much-mocked Fourth of July oration now, but he remembers how its periods stirred the pulse of his boyhood, and he has a sad misgiving that the ambitions of modern life make a mockery of simple patriotism, and are training our boys up as monarchists and scorners of the homespun heroes who founded the Republic. Even the Englishman, contrasting the observance of this day in St. Louis with the popular celebrations of GUY FAWKES' day and the anniversaries of the Queen's birth and coronation at home, will conclude that the worship of the almighty dollar has supplanted all other emotions in the American bosom, and that our loyalty is perishing like a parasite for want of some stately regal stock to grow upon.

But if the remarkable coolness of this particular Fourth could have been anticipated, St. Louis would doubtless have kept it with a grand parade of some sort. There is hardly a county in Missouri that is not surpassing all its former efforts to honor the day. The sun-burned farmer, fresh from the magnificent harvest of this year, does not fear a Fourth of July sun-stroke, and can stand the screaming of the orator's eagle in a sweltering crowd as well as his father before him. But the larger cities have outgrown the old-fashioned celebration, and in our city especially, the intense heat to be expected on the Fourth and the immensity of our population produce dangers and discomforts comparatively unknown in country celebrations. There is no lack of the right feeling, but its full and proper expression requires some new vent, some new form of observance in which the vast population of a city can participate without too much concentration. In spite of all the corruption of social and political life in cities, they are, after all, when the final test comes, the very strongholds of liberty and patriotism. As TENNYSON said after recounting all the symptoms of moral and political pestilence in the English cities:

"But I trust if an enemy's fleet came yonder round the hill
And the rushing battle-bolt sang from the three-decker out of the foam,
That the smooth-faced, snub-nosed rorue would leap from his counter and till
And strike, if he could, were it but with his cheating yard-wand home."

The uses of a day that recalls men of all classes, sections and parties to the brotherhood of a joint inheritance and a common citizenship, are too precious to be neglected. We are loth to admit that there is a disposition to neglect them or that the people are becoming too degenerate to feel the inspiration of their fathers' glorious work. The man who will devise a popular and appropriate programme for the Fourth of July in large cities, will deserve to rank with the author of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

SINCE BEN BUTLER'S regeneration and reorganization as a Democrat he is growing sensitive. It was reported from Chicago the other day that he had fought the law against a Baking Powder Company which was employing a caricature of his ugly face in connection with its business. We don't know what there is about a baking powder that should induce a cautious business firm to adopt a picture of BEN BUTLER as a trade-mark unless it be that the powder will rise when set on and, like the great Massachusetts BOANARGES, is hard to keep down. In New Orleans there is scarcely a bar-room that doesn't maintain a hideous plaster cast of BUTLER with a gigantesque spoon on shoulder and a malicious leer in the left eye. A few years ago, or, more correctly speaking, just after the war, some gentlemen who built a steamboat at Louisville, Ky., expressed their feeling toward Mr. BUTLER by causing his portrait to be painted on the inside of certain state-room utensils. This fact was very generally published, but the pachydermatous BUTLER paid no attention whatever to this palpable slur. It is possible that as the General grows older his skin grows thinner, and that a condition has been reached in which he finds himself no longer able to turn aside the shafts of ridicule and calumny. If the good man has really made up his mind that the public has had enough fun at his expense and has concluded to correct history touching those spoons, he can count on our assistance, but as the Parisian mob said to LOUIS PHILIPPE when he began to show a yielding disposition, we really think c'est trop tard.

REFERRING to the case of Mr. E. F. BERKLEY, Jr., whose scandalous conduct was appropriately shown up in the POST-DISPATCH last week, the Globe-Democrat of to-day says editorially:

A case was "dismissed for want of prosecution" in the Police Court yesterday which ought to have been tried for the purpose of exposing and punishing a young man guilty of gross and cowardly indecency, and representing a class which is constantly increasing in numbers in this community. We allude to what are vulgarly known as the "young bloods" of the city—young men who feel relieved of all restraints in the commission of crime by reliance upon family influence to secure immunity in the event of detection. The law is dealt out with great severity to the friendless ruffian who happens to place himself within its clutches, but when the offender happens to be "well connected" the laws are silenced in his behalf. No court for the trial of criminal offenses has any right to dismiss a case "for want of prosecution" because such offenses are not against an individual, but against the city or State, and the agrieved party has no other connection with them than as a witness, in which capacity he should be compelled to come forward and tell the truth.

It must have been some of this same "family influence" that suppressed in the morning papers the fact that BERKLEY had been arrested for grossly insulting a respectable woman on the street.

COL. MCMICHAEL, of the Platteburg Lever, wants it understood that his relations with the Prohibition movement amount to nothing more than a harmless flirtation, subject always to the approval of the Democratic party. In behalf of himself and Col. SWITZLER he says they are and always have been "more opposed to a Prohibition party than any anti-Prohibitionist in the State," and he adds: "Everybody knows the editors of the Statesman and Lever are reliably Democratic, and all the whisky forces in the State can't drive us out of the party. We mean to stick, and hope the editor of the POST-DISPATCH will observe the fact as we go along in the political future." From this and some further remarks we learn that Col. MCMICHAEL and Col. SWITZLER are for reform "within the party only," and are relying upon the Democracy of Missouri to suppress the liquor traffic and inaugurate the millennium.

BOB PATE'S Governor, in a casual conversation with a newspaper correspondent in his office last week, took occasion to say:

I heard that there were people figuring for the Circuit Attorneyship while Mr. Harris was supposed to be dying. I will say this much, that I have nothing but contempt for such a man. I never would appoint to office any man who was figuring on the possibility of securing a dying man's position.

At the time Mr. HARRIS was supposed to be in extremis Mr. FRANCIS XAVIER MCCABE took occasion to inform his friends that he had been selected by the Republican for the successorship. It is presumed that Mr. CRITTENDEN was thinking of this when he appointed MCCABE a Police Commissioner. This would be in strict accordance with his practice of doing things which he publicly professes to be opposed to.

A YOUNG St. Louis attorney who has been to Jefferson City procuring pardons for gamblers reports BOB PATE'S Governor as saying that "the effect of the agitation about the pardon of the gamblers and the resignation of the Police Commissioners is purely local, having no effect or influence outside of the city." We would direct the attention of His Leniency to the batch of Missouri press comments which we print to-day. It seems that the storm of indignation which he has raised by his venality has spread over the rural districts somewhat.

GEN. GRANT has escaped the danger of a displaced rail and overturned train without injury, just as he escaped the bullets of many a Southern marksman.—[Cincinnati Gazette.

We do not observe the analogy. History shows that GRANT avoided the bullets of the Southern marksmen by keeping well out of range. He owes his recent escape from harm in the railway accident to the fact that he was well up to the front—in the smoking-car, in fact.

ATTRIBUTED to TOM CRITTENDEN by the Kansas City Times:

I have heard somewhere about the unpardonable sin. I am incredulous on the subject, and would like to tackle it. I have the utmost confidence in my ability to upset a precedent.

—Mr. William Warren, the actor, has just completed the thirty-fifth year of his unbroken connection with the Boston Museum.

—It is announced by telegraph that the Malley boys will spend the summer at Saratoga. Now is the time to organize a rifle club in Saratoga.

—Nine conductors on the Michigan Central Railroad have been discharged since last Friday. It is understood that they now contemplate purchasing the road.

—The Thomas concerts in Milwaukee involved a loss of $3,000 to the management. It is always difficult in cities where tug-whistles can be heard every day to make people pay for hearing classical music.

—Having enjoyed such a remarkable bit of good fortune in the sale of his little Meissonier, Mr. Ruskin now proposes to sell ten of his Turners under the hammer. This, too, after his vigorous denunciations of picture-jobbing.

—Two sets of municipal officers have been elected at Petersburg, Va., and both are doing business. Taxpayers in Petersburg are now wondering why they were not lucky enough to have located in the track of an Iowa cyclone.

—An English paper says that Mr. Tennyson's son is to marry a daughter of the Duke of Argyll. Tennyson, it will be remembered, is the gentleman who wrote a poem about a girl who was Queen of the May and died in August of cerebro-spinal meningitis.

—Chauncey Black, who was last week nominated Lieutenant Governor by the Pennsylvania Democrats, is a son of Judge Jeremiah S. Black. He lives at York, Penn., near his father's residence, where he has for years devoted himself to literature, politics and journalism.

—The newly married Duke and Duchess of Albany have delighted the Scottish heart by selecting patterns of tartan, which will henceforth be called by their names. That chosen by the Duchess is an elaborate design of blue, green and black. The Duke's is red and black, and of plainer pattern.

—A New York letter says that the Evening Post has been so prosperous under its new direction that it will assume a quarto form as soon as the proper presses, already ordered, can be finished. There will be no change in the personnel of the editor, however, Mr. Schurz retaining his folio appearance.

—Prof. Haight, of Vincennes, Ind., concerning whom and a female teacher in the college at Vincennes certain scandalous reports were circulated, has been exonerated and allowed to resign. Prof. Haight is probably some relation to the small boy whose father forgave him for stealing apples, but whipped him for having torn his pants while getting over the fence.

—A London gossiper speaks thus of Miss Neilson's young man: "No one 'behind the scenes' was surprised to hear of the marriage at Brighton last week of Miss Virginia Frances Bateman and Mr. Edward Compton. These young people have been for some time 'palpably hit' with each other. Mr. Compton is the pleasant young actor who accompanied the ill-starred Adelaide Neilson on her last trip to America."

MISSOURI POLITICS.

The Democratic nomination for Congress in the First District seems to be conceded to Hatch.

The Democratic Committee for the First District meet at Shelbina August 1 to call a convention.

Gen. Clark's rivals in the Sixth District seem to be still hunting or holding back till Congress adjourns.

The Greenbackers of the First District hold a convention at Kirksville August 24 to nominate a candidate for Congress.

In the Thirteenth District, the Greenbackers nominate at Springfield July 18, and the Democrats at Peirce City, August 15.

Chariton county has three candidates for Congress—Stockwell of Salisbury, Mackey of Keytesville, and Musser of Brunswick.

Ex-Senator John H. Morse of Jefferson county, is the only compe titor of the Hon. M L. Clardy for the Democratic nomination in the Tenth.

Butler of Sullivan, Rothwell of Randolph and Alexander of Monroe are among the candidates for the Democratic nomination in the Second District.

The Democrats of the Eleventh District nominate at Cuba, August 30. Maries county has instructed for Belch and Crawford, Phelps and Laclede for Bland.

The Ray county Democrats in convention assembled have instructed their delegates to the State convention for Sherwood for judge of the supreme court.

Butler and Ray county Democratic delegates to the State Convention are under instructions to vote for the renomination of Judge Sherwood to the supreme bench.

In the Fourteenth District the Democrats nominate at Piedmont August 22. The three candidates for the nomination are Hon. L. H. Davis, Mr. Livingston of Howell, and Joseph C. Moore of Mississippi county.

The Democratic Convention to nominate a candidate for Congress in the Seventh District meets at Troy, Lincoln county, August 1. Judge Buckner's rivals are waiting to give him a chance when Congress adjourns.

Each county in the Twelfth District except Cedar has instructed for its own candidate for the Democratic nomination—Barton for Morgan, Vernon for Churchill, Dade for De Armond, Bates for Abernathy, St. Clair for Nesbitt, and so on.

The Republican County Committees in the Fourth District seem to be overwhelmingly in favor of nominating a straight Republican candidate for Congress. Hill of Holt, Dawes of St. Jo and Kelley and Saunders of Andrew are among the candidates mentioned.

The Democratic Convention for the Fifth District meets at Kansas City on August 2. The announced candidates are Harmon of Johnson, and McClelland, Ryland and Graves of Lafayette. But Jackson will get the nomination if she can unite her strength upon either of her dark horses. All of her politicians have up lightning rods.

The Platte City Landmark says of the contest for the Democratic nomination in the Fourth District: "Atchison and Holt are for Wilson, Nodaway nearly evenly divided on Dawson, with a majority of anti-Dawson men in favor of Wilson. Buchanan for Burnes. Andrew doubtful, but inclining to be led by Buchanan, and Platte solid for Wilson."

The Democratic Convention of the Third District meets at Cameron, August 15. The Plattsburg Lever, whose editor is spoken of as a candidate, says: "We believe that every Democratic candidate for Congress in this district is a temperance man, and a number of these candidates are avowed Prohibitionists, having made speeches in behalf of the measure."

La Platte Home Press: But the political chintz bugs are getting thick, and we are threatened with the army worm; every Democratic county has an army of sore-heads and disappointed office hunters, who are ready to become deserters and join their fortunes to the lean and hungry pack who are ready for any combination—Mahoneism, Crispism, H. Martin Williamism or anything else that promises a little office.

Richmond Conservator: Not since the Democratic party was rent asunder at Charleston, when it resolved itself into Douglass and Breckenridge wings, has it been in worse shape in Missouri than at the present time. In almost every county are factions knifing each other, and the press of the State mirrors a condition that is truly deplorable to the cause of Democratic institutions.

A Rather Funny Mistake.

NORTH SPRINGFIELD, MO., July 1.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Please publish the following as a local in your paper:

A man named August Wagener, employed at the Frisco shops here, made a curious mistake yesterday. He took a piece of Limburger cheese belonging to John Doyle and undertook to wash his hands and arms with it, while J. Doyle, not seeing his cheese, ate the soap in place of it. It unnerved them completely when the mistake was found out.

ST. LOUIS, July 3, 1882.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Will you permit me to suggest to the managers of the Pickwick Theater, through the medium of your columns, that they give us the opera "fme Angot's Child" before the close of the season? This opera has not been done here for years, and I, with many others, believe its production would be gratifying to the amusement-loving public, who so liberally patronize this theater, and pecuniarily satisfactory to the management. BOB PATE'S GOVERNOR.

The Missouri Press Condemns the Pardon of the Felon Gamblers.

From the Monroe Appeal.

We are a Democrat—a Bourbon, perhaps—but that does not deter us from condemning a State official who seems to be the pet of the criminals of the State. Hence we have spoken in plain terms against Gov. Crittenden's wholesale pardoning of thieves, gamblers and forgers. * * *

We don't know, and we wouldn't say, yet we believe that our Governor has been bought. * * *

From the day of his inauguration to the present time, we believe that he has turned more thieves, murderers, forgers and law-breakers loose upon the State, than all the Governors the State has had for the past twenty years. Now, there must be a reason for this. What is it? It can't be that he is more tender-hearted than other men, or that one thief is more deserving of favors than another—but we believe that it is because some thieves have more friends and money than others!

From the Saline County Democrat.

We condemn the act as strongly as any one can. We think the granting of Executive clemency to the gamblers an outrage on society and an insult to the local officers who worked up the cases. Yet we see in that act no evidence of personal dishonesty on the part of the Governor. It was simply one of those egregious blunders which too often follow the exercise of large responsibilities by small men.

From the Warrensburg Journal-Democrat (Home Organ).

The Journal-Democrat does not approve of Governor Crittenden's action in pardoning these gamblers, but we do not see that a mistake in the exercise of the pardoning power justifies the preachers of St Louis in posing before the public as outraged innocents.

From the Springfield Patriot (Rep.)

Gov. Crittenden knows how to commit blunders with unusual ease, but he has out done himself in this case. He has shown that his sympathies are with the most vicious and dangerous class of criminals in the State, or else that his motives were not honest.

From the Marshall Democrat.

We are really sorry that it was a Democratic executive that pardoned the St. Louis gamblers, but we have the consolation of knowing that the party in the State does not indorse the act. The Governor has simply driven another nail into his political coffin.

From the Miami News (Dem.)

Thus are we disgraced and the law cheated by an infamous and corrupt Governor. We think to acknowledge that we voted for Crittenden, and feel that we have made such a miserable blunder that it will take years of penitence to wash the sin away.

From the Lebanon Rustic Leader. (Dem.)

But in pleading for candid hearing to be given Governor Crittenden, we are not prepared to say that his reasons for pardoning these criminals were just. While we accord full leeway of purpose to the Governor we think he has made a mistake.

From the Knob Noster Gem (Dem.)

So far as the Gem has undertaken to indorse the administration of our handsome Governor as best it could, but his last movement does not meet our approbation any more than it voices the opinion of the public throughout the State.

From the Hannibal Journal.

Governor Crittenden is meeting with an almost unanimous rebuke for his action in pardoning the St. Louis gamblers. If he is, as reported, an aspirant for Senatorial honors, he has played the wrong card.

From the Osceola Sun (Dem).

It seems to us that a pardon was not called for in this instance. The mere fact that they had money and friends should not have interfered with their punishment, which was the lightest the law could inflict.

From the Shelbina Democrat.

Now comes his Excellency and pardons them. What his reasons were, beyond what he says in his order, we do not know; but it has taken everybody greatly by surprise.

From the Missouri Cash Book (Dem.)

No doubt, the Governor means well; but if he keeps up this pardoning business much longer, people will fail to fearing that he possesses a heart too tender for justice's sake.

From the Sedalia Eagle-Times.

The pardon broking business in Missouri just now, during these panicky times, would indicate that the office of Governor is no "slouch" of an office after all.

From the Springfield Daily Extra.

So far as heard from the St. Louis Republican and the Sedalia Democrat are the only newspapers in the State that indorse Dr. Crittenden's pardon of the gamblers.

From the Knob Noster Gem.

The POST DISPATCH speaks of Gov. Crittenden as "Bob Pate's Governor." The P. D. is severe but evidently just in its criticisms of His Leniency.

From the Glasgow Central Missourian.

Crittenden has made some blunders as a Governor, and this, his last one, is not the least in importance.

About Time.

From the Chicago Times.

Now that Guiteau is hung, isn't it about time that Stephen W. Dorsey, the Savior of Indiana, should resign the secretaryship of the National Republican Committee?

A Pun That Means Something.

From the Battle Courier (Dem.)

Some of the papers are spelling it Kinvy Department.

The Price of Pardons.

From the Fargo (Dakota) Arrus.

Tom Crittenden, the Lilliputian Governor of Missouri, is doing a lively business pardoning convicted gamblers who have lots of money. The average rates on pardon brokerage are not quoted in the St. Louis market reports, but they should be.

The Tiger Turned Loose.

From the Kansas City Journal.

Gov. Crittenden having called the turn on the gambling law, the boys in Kansas City, Kansas, might as well move up town and bring the tiger nearer to its patrons.

Waiting For Medals.

From the Philadelphia Times.

None of the Grant medals have yet found their way to this town, but there are six men out of jail and one man in jail who are waiting for them.

BLAND'S POLITICAL VIEWS.

What He Thinks of President Arthur—The Democratic Outlook, Etc.

Hon. Richard P. Bland, member of Congress from Lebanon, Mo., remained in the city to-day, and was found this morning in the rotunda of the Planters' House engaged in a patriotic observance of the Fourth by showing a crowd of small boys how to carry a flag. When the boys had disappeared a reporter of the POST-DISPATCH attracted his attention and requested a little patriotic interview on political topics.

"Well, what do you want to know?" inquired Mr. Bland.

"I want to know your personal opinion of President Arthur?"

"I think the country has been agreeably disappointed in him, because they were misled as to his personal qualifications. In the first place, he is not a brilliant man, but he is a shrewd, cautious politician. Above all, President Arthur is well-advised and is not averse to receiving advice. The present outlook is that he will have a very satisfactory Republican administration. As a party man I am opposed to his methods, but it is undeniable that Mr. Arthur has satisfied both the stalwart and conservative elements of his party."

"What is the prospect in Pennsylvania?"

"Everything appears to be in good shape for a Democratic victory there. We have a splendid ticket, and the anti-Cameron men are persistent."

"Is there any prospect for a national Democratic victory in 1884?"

"As the physicians say, while there is life there is hope, but nothing definite can be calculated until after the November elections. To illustrate: Our solid South will be broken to what extent cannot now be determined; in the North we are making large gains that must more than offset Southern losses. If we gain Pennsylvania this year it disarranges all former calculations and places us in an entirely new attitude. Personally I have the greatest confidence in a National victory, but there can be no definite conclusions arrived at until after this year's elections. I predict that the next Congress will be a curious conglomeration of indefinite articles—politically speaking."

"What do you think of the proposed alliance between the Republicans and Greenbackers of Missouri?"

"It cannot avail anything, for the reason that the Republicans generally will not support the State Greenback ticket and the public has no confidence in the Greenback party. I believe that an independent movement in this State, carefully manipulated, would carry in somewhat, but the plan proposed will only give us a more certain walk-over."

"What do you mean by an independent movement?"

"A movement that will combine every element of opposition into something that might resemble a citizens' platform. A ticket that combined prominent Greenbackers, Republicans, disgruntled Democrats, and representatives of every class that possess votes in the State might make trouble for us. A simple endorsement of the Greenback ticket by the Republicans will amount to nothing. There is no deception in it—no disguise about it, and it will not be taken hold of as a plum by the floating vote. It is too evidently a partisan movement to obtain control of the offices without any principles or any ideas involved, and would not live through a vigorous campaign."

Mr. Bland leaves the city to-day for Callaway county, where he expects to visit personal friends.

STRANGELY INFATUATED.

A Girl of Fourteen Runs Away With a Laborer of Forty-Two.

When the Washington accommodation train pulled into the Union Depot this morning on the Missouri Pacific tracks a horny-fisted son of toil about forty-two years of age and a girl of about fourteen stepped down to the platform. The couple locked arms with an air scarcely paternal or fraternal, and in a style that attracted the attention of Sergeant Burke, who, on consulting his telegrams, decided that he wanted the couple. At the corner of Eleventh and Poplar streets he arrested the man and girl and took them to the Four Courts. The man gave his name as Mike Allen and the girl said her name was Emma Polston and her age 14 years. The girl is a daughter of Wm. Polston, who lives at Eureka, Mo., about thirty miles from this city on the Missouri Pacific. Allen is a carpenter and was employed on the railroad at that point. He met little Emma Polston, and, despite the inequalities of age and condition, the man and child became strongly infatuated. The girl left home with Allen, but luckily her absence was promptly discovered, and Sergt. Burke was telegraphed a statement of the case and a description of the man by Mr. Wm. Polston, the girl's father. Allen and the girl will be held to await the arrival of the child's father.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

The St. Clair Gun Club will celebrate the day this afternoon by a grand shoot at Winstanley Grove, valuable prizes being offered.

The members of Golden Rule Lodge, No. 374, I. O. O. F., will hold an important business meeting at their hall to-night, at which a full attendance of members is requested.

Business is altogether suspended to-day; but little or no celebration is taking place, most of the residents being in St. Louis or elsewhere on pleasure trips. The game of base ball between the Nationals and Standards is the only local gathering to take place.

The meeting of the School Board and the appointment of teachers for the next scholastic year, which was expected last night, did not take place on account of absent members. Only three members attended, and it is freely circulated that one of the number was beastly intoxicated, the object of the others being to mass the appointments, while one of the opposition was unable to recognize his friends or foes. The numerous adjourned meetings of the board of late are caused by both parties having lists of teachers made out whom they are desirous of having appointed, and as neither side will accept a compromise or attend a meeting, while the opposition have a majority the appointments are not likely to take place until the latter part of next month, when the absent member of the board is expected to return. The action of the board is causing considerable dissatisfaction among the tax-payers of the city.

A TEXAS FIRM.

Slick Tricks in Attempting to Defraud Creditors.

St. Louis wholesale firms have recently experienced considerable difficulty in regulating their Texas credit trade. Not long since a Texas firm was indicted at the instance of several St. Louis houses for obtaining goods under false pretenses. A few days since there was a jury trial in the Federal Court at Austin, Texas, which was watched with great interest by creditors generally throughout the country, the result of which has afforded eminent satisfaction. It has shown that a Texas jury will not uphold any transaction which bears the shadow of a suspicious tendency to defraud, hinder or delay creditors. The particulars are of interest to all St. Louis business men having trade in the Southwest. Twelve months since J. E. Hayner & Co., of the Agricultural Implement Works in this city, had the firm of John A. Webb & Bro., of Austin, Tex., on their books to the extent of $20,000. Information reached the St. Louis creditors at that time that Webb & Brother had transferred their stock, consisting of hardware, agricultural implements, together with notes and accounts, to the Winchester and Partridge Manufacturing Company, of Whitewater, Wisconsin. It seemed that the Whitewater firm were creditors for $19,000. The stock transferred was inventoried at $44,000, and the notes and accounts were considered good for $28,000. The Whitewater firm gave notes for the difference after wiping out their account. The transaction in the eyes of the other creditors of Webb & Brother bore the color of fraud and collusion, and it was the general impression that the Austin firm was being assisted by the Whitewater firm to evade their indebtedness, or to get the assets out of the way, for the purpose of effecting a composition. The St. Louis house, J. E. Hayner & Co., at once resolved to attach anything in sight, and the stock transferred to the Winchester & Partridge Manufacturing Company was levied upon. That firm then brought suit for $30,000 damages against Sheriff Ed. Creary, of Austin, and the sureties on his official bond. The trial lasted eleven days and witnesses representing business houses all over the country were on the witness stand. Some of the best legal talent in the West was engaged in the fight. Major Lee, of Dyer, Lee & Ellis, of this city, represented J. E. Hayner & Co. The verdict was in favor of the Sheriff and his sureties, and thus the attachment of the St. Louis attaching creditors was sustained by a Texas jury of business men. In the course of the evidence it was shown that the Webbs had been insolvent for four years. Some amusement was afforded by the testimony of Mr. Baker, representing a Philadelphia house, figuring on the list of creditors. That gentleman described his visit to Austin to protect his house and his unsuccessful effort to secure anything. Cross-examined, he admitted that he had failed once himself; that in his mode of settlement he had compromised at the United States bankruptcy law. The creditors got nothing and the lawyers got all there was. The reason of his failure was precisely that illustrated in the case of the Austin firm. He "commenced to bore with a very large auger; he followed it up with a gimlet, and has got lost in the hole. That was how he dropped out of sight."

THE BEST HARNESS.

American Harness-Makers Far Superior to the Europeans.

Mr. D. J. Hoban, President of the National Harness-makers' Association, now in session in St. Louis, is authority for the statement that the finest harness in the world is manufactured in the United States. The English coach harness for which, several years ago, extravagant prices were willingly paid, is no longer imported in anything like large quantities. Home manufacturers in New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis are now supplying most, if not all, the fine harness used in this country. It is true that the mounting of the English coach harness has not yet been equaled by our own workmen, but the harness proper is much inferior to that which is turned out in the American cities which have been mentioned. The European harness-makers do not approach the Americans. It will gratify the St. Louis readers of the POST-DISPATCH to learn that the shops of St. Louis can turn out as elegant work as the shops of New York or Philadelphia. This fact is not yet fully appreciated by our own public, but it is nevertheless true. It is likewise a fact that a complete set of the best harness can be bought in St. Louis shops for a great deal less money than the same goods command in Eastern cities.

The Road to Quarantine.

The heavy rains of the past few weeks have done considerable damage to the roads in the suburbs of the city. This is particularly true of the wagon roads in the bottom along the river in the southern part of St. Louis county. Superintendent Madigan, of the Quarantine Hospital, yesterday notified Health Commissioner Francis that the wagon road leading to that institution is covered in places with several feet of water. Fortunately the number of patients for that institution have recently been very few and the trips to Quarantine have consequently been rather unfrequent, but yesterday two patients were ordered to the hospital and the question of how to convey them there without too great inconvenience came up for consideration. The Health Commissioner solved the difficulty by raising the couch in the ambulance to a level with the seat of the driver, and the trip was made successfully. It is expected the water in the roads will recede before many hours and leave them dry and hard.

Miss Minnie Floyd, of Louisville, Ky., arrived in the city last night on a visit to Miss Mamie Hopkins, of 2906 Pine street.

Capt. John Greenough has returned from a brief visit to Rich Hill, Mo., which he characterizes as the most promising town in the West.

A BIG BUSINESS.

The Theatrical Industry of the Country.

$162,000,000 Paid Annually by the People of the United States for Amusements.

Next Season's Programme—Stars and Combinations Preparing for the Fall—A Plethora of Stars.

It can be remembered when the theatrical business had no standing in the mercantile world. The actor was presumed to be too deeply buried in art and the manager too greatly overwhelmed with nomadic impulses to consider the almighty dollar in its proper capacity. Times have changed, and to-day the theater proprietor, the manager and the actor peruse their several ledgers with the same care, the same sagacity and the same business principles as the pork packer, the dry goods merchant and the grain operator. And people have no conception of the vastness of the theatrical industry, for its vital statistics have never reached the public. Banking houses looked down upon this industry until theatrical managers were found to be amongst the shrewdest and most profitable customers. Wealthy citizens have smiled at the idea of the theatrical business being strictly legitimate, but have lived to see the theaters going into the real estate market with an energy and a purpose that showed the results of a legitimate traffic. Money covers most everything, and since the general public have come to understand that more money, more brains and more energy are required to deal in theatricals than to run a grocery-store, their respect has correspondingly increased. The future of the business and the profession is brighter than ever before in their history, and under proper treatment will develop wonderfully and to the benefit of the country. A recent publication fixes the total number of theaters in the United States at 4,500, all keeping open for an average of forty weeks during the year. The average receipts of one night's performance, estimating the poorest attraction with that filling the house, is about $150 for each theater, or a total of $675,000 paid every night by the people of this country for amusements. Continuing the calculation, it will be found that the theaters receive $4,050,000 a week, or for the entire season of forty weeks, $162,000,000, not counting matinees, which are a material figure in many cities, and may be estimated at $1,000,000 more. These figures do not include the circuses and summer garden theaters that fill up the remaining twelve weeks of the year. Out of these enormous receipts of $163,000,000 there are 28,000 actors drawing continuous salaries, and 12,000 miscellaneous workers, such as stage carpenters, property men, scene shifters, door-keepers, ushers and ticket-sellers. These salaries are averaged at $20 a week for the entire 40,000, thus aggregating a total in salaries alone of $32,000,000. The rental and taxes of the 4,500 different theaters cannot fall below $4,000 each, or $18,000,000 a year, thus explaining where some of the receipts go. These figures, however, give some idea of the extent of the theatrical industry, and conclusively prove that a traffic involving so many millions of dollars annually cannot fail to impress itself upon the commercial world. Thousands attend places of amusement every night without the faintest notion that dollars and cents are being carefully figured out of the programme, and that while some divine singer or entrancing actor is carrying the auditorium into the seventh heaven of delight, several worldly-minded gentlemen are "counting the house," or, in other words, making the cash receipts, the tickets and the audience balance to the satisfaction of all concerned. Of course when these things are thought of at all they are readily conceded, but the public has so long been accustomed to accept without financial thought whatever is paraded before the footlights that they scarcely ever connect the stage with mercenary facts and figures.

The coming theatrical season, which opens generally the last week in August, promises to be one of the most successful, not only artistically, but financially considered, of any season since the war. The country has abundant harvests, the money market is easy, with prospects of foreign demand, and everybody looks forward to a year of extraordinary prosperity. In the midst of this pleasant outlook the heavy theatrical and operatic managers are securing extraordinary attractions upon venturesome contracts, and the woods are filled with new plays, new stars, and the newest sorts of schemes for public patronage. Many of these will necessarily fail, but the survival of the fittest will amply compensate the public for testing the merits of every attraction offered. It is a peculiarly lenient and prosperous condition of affairs when the people will encourage the best and the worst with almost equal satisfaction. In the fashionable city of Brooklyn, for instance, Miss Annie Ward Tiffany drew crowded houses last week in a drama called "One Dime; or, the Jockey's Dream." In San Francisco a play called "Jesse James, the Bandit King," has achieved a considerable measure of success. In Washington City the burlesque of "His Majesty's Safety Pin" has fallen upon the public with astonishing applause, while in Philadelphia is a play designated "The Equine Paradox," and in Toledo the people are perfectly charmed with "Morgan's Revenge," by the Hildebrand Combination. In the midst of all this rush of peculiarities and idiosyncrasies, Bob Ingersoll has secured a theater in Philadelphia and will next month produce his new play, entitled, "The Wild, Wild West." It is pleasant, however, to contemplate the movements of such managers as Abbey, Mapleson, Palmer, Daly and Stetson, who are heaping up treasures for the coming winter and providing such feasts as the country has scarcely known before. Arrangements have so far progressed that a careful reader cannot fail to be attracted by the "aggregation of talent" (see small bills) that will soon descend upon the art patrons of America.

OPERATIC AND CONCERT.

First and foremost, the divine Patti will return under the management of Mr. Mapleson, at a stipend of $4,400 a night, beginning in New York City, where Mr. Mapleson has leased the Academy of Music for the production of opera. The only grand Italian opera company thus far decided upon is that of Mapleson's, who will have a carefully selected support for Patti, and a series of off-night attractions headed probably by Clara Louise Kellogg. It is understood that Mme. Gerster will not return. Mr. Abbey has secured Mme Christine Nilsson, who will give a series of concerts throughout the country. Miss Emma Abbott comes next with a new company. Fannie Kellogg and Sig. Brignoli will indulge in a concert term, under the management of Max Bracher. These will be followed by a series of little concerts, ending the programme of classic music. In the realm of comic opera the promise is more extensive. Mlle. Aimee returns with a new company and increased vivacity. She can't sing, but her acting is full of grace and charm. Then come the Boston Ideals, the Philadelphia and Chicago Church Choir companies, D'Oyley Carte's Opera Company, Maha's Comic Opera, the Comley-Barton, the Catherine Lewis, the Fay Templeton, the Criterion, the Hess, the Haverly, Ford's, Norcross' and McCaull's opera companies, all crowded with new people and fresh voices, and followed by Rice's New Surprise Party and the Corinne Merrimakers, making a total of twenty-six musical attractions for the coming season.

DRAMATIC STARS.

The list of new dramatic stars is not so large as it is interesting, but the number of new plays, mostly melodramatic, is rather bewildering. Mr. Abbey heads the list of new stars with Mrs. Langtry, the "Jersey Lily," who secures a certainty of $1,000 a night. Her principal play will be Tom Taylor's "Unequal Match," which was played here in February, 1877, by Miss Effie Ellsler. The veteran Hill brings out his already famous novice, Margaret Mather, who will make her debut as Juliet next month in Chicago. Then follow Edwin Booth, John McCullough, Tom Keene, George Edgar, Mary Anderson Mme. Janauschek, Lawrence Barrett, James O'Neill, William Stafford, Frederick Warde and Frank Mayo in the strictly legitimate. Mme. Modjeska is already booked for a tour of the country in her repertoire of two years ag . Comedy, melodrama and burlesque will be represented as follows by dramatic stars: Aldrich and Parsloe in "My Partner," Eric Bayley in a series of English comedies, Barry and Fay in "Irish Aristocracy," Kate Claxton in "Two Orphans," Lotta Crabtree in "Bob" and "Musette," Laura Don, a new star, in "A Daughter of the Nile," Alex. Caufman in "Called to Account," Rose Eytinge in a new play, Maggie Mitchell in her well-known repertoire, Pearl Eytinge in "Brentwood," James A. Hearne in "Hearts of Oak," Annie Pixley in "M'liss," Mr. and Mrs. McKee Rankin in "'49," F. S. Chanfrau and Henrietta Chanfrau in "Kit," Minnie Palmer and R. E. Graham in "My Sweetheart," Roland Reed, a new star, in "Cheek," John T. Raymond in "Touch and Go" and "Fresh, the American," Denman Thompson in "Deacon Crankett," Charlotte Thompson in "The New Jane Eyre," Gus. Williams in "One of the Finest," Carrie Swain, a new star, in "Cad, the Tomboy," Bertha Welby, a new star, in "One Woman's Life," John Howson, the well-known comic opera singer, forsakes opera and stars in a comedy called "Straws," Helen Coleman, a new star, in "Aunt Rebecca's Pawn-Shop," Miss Jeffreys-Lewis in "La Belle Russe," C. B. Bishop, a new star, in "Strictly Business," M. B. Curtis in "Sam'l of Posen," Frank Bush, a new star, in "Ikey Solomons," Sol. Smith Russell in "Edgewood Folks" and a new play, Clara Morris in her usual repertoire, Joseph Jefferson in "The Rivals," Marion Elmore, a new star, in "Chispa," Minnie Maddern, a new star, in "Fogg's Ferry," Robson and Crane in "Forbidden Fruit," Geo. S. Knight in his new play, Nat. C. Goodwin in a new character, Joe Emmet in "Fritz in Ireland," Dion Boucicault in "Connie Soogah," Milton Nobles in his former repertoire, Robt. McWade in "Rip Van Winkle," Harry Webber in "Nip and Tuck," Julia Hunt in "Florinel," Francis C. Hamilton, a new star, in "Judge Slasher," W. J. Florence and wife in a new play, Joseph Murphy in "Maum Cree," Frank Mordaunt in "Old Shipmates," Frank I. Frayne in "Si Slocum," the Lingards in "Divorcons," Ada Ward, a new star, in a new play, Harry Meredith in "Ranche No. 10," Edwin F. Thorne in "The Black Flag," Buffalo Bill in a new play, John W. Ransone in "Across the Atlantic," Ben Maginley in "A Square Man," Charles Davis in "Alvin Joslin," Joseph Wheelock, in "Capt. Warder." One of the principal features of the season is expected to be the American tour of Chas. Wyndham, the famous English comedian, while among the probabilities is Ristori. A specially interesting tour will be that of Edwin F. Thorne, in "The Black Flag," for the star is an actor of considerable repute and the play is pronounced commensurate with his great abilities. These complete the long and entertaining list of dramatic stars.

COMBINATIONS.

There will be a plethora of the scenic and spectacular next season. Chief in the former list is now reckoned Colville's "Taken from Life," which is expected to make a great hit, and is declared to be a marvel of beauty and picturesqueness. Next in the list is "Romany Rye," a quaint gipsy production that is alleged to be very naughty, but likewise awfully nice. The Kiralfys will produce two new spectacles, the first called "Siberia," and the second, "The Bottom of the Sea." Other combinations are now completed, as follows: The "Michael Strogoff," "The World," the "Fun on the Bristol," Willie Edouin's "Dreams," the Harrisons, in a new comedy, three "Hazel Kirke" companies, "The Professor" company, the "All at Sea," "The Banker's Daughter" company, "The White Slave" company, Leavitt's Specialty Companies, Tony Pastor's, Hyde & Behman's, Jay Rial's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," George Holland Comedy Company, Nick Roberts' Carnival, Geo. H. Adams' "New Humpty Dumpty," the Hanlon Brothers, Lyttell's "Youth" company, Bartley Campbell's "My Geraldine," "The Tourists," Salsbury's Troubadours, C. H. Smith's Double "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Our Goblins" Company, Daly's "Passing Regiment," Tony Denier's Humpty Dumpty, the Aiken-Rodgers Combination, the Kendall Comedy Company, Hoey and Hardie's Combination, Collier's "Lights o' London," Combination, Harrigan and Hart's, etc.

THE MINSTRELS.

Minstrelsy will be represented by Haverly's New United Mastodons, Hooley and Rice's, Duprez and Benedict's, Fiske's Jubilee Singers, Heywood's Minstrels, the San Francisco Minstrels, Leavitt's Gigantean Minstrels and Morton's Big Four.

FOR General Debility and Prostration Hop Bitters will do wonders. Prove it by trial.

CITY NEWS.

Arnold Bruening, a German working for a farmer on the Columbia Bottom road, was struck by lighting and killed yesterday during a storm.

Chas. Green announces that he will put the same ticket in the field for the new Fair election, including the name of E. A. Filley.

Victims of bathing in the Meramec yesterday and Sunday were A. Mueller, a sixteen-year-old lad, and Robt. McGee, same age, in the employ of Farmer Coleman in the county.

Miss Mary J. Harris, sister of ex-Superintendent Harris of the public schools, and head assistant at the Peabody, left San Francisco last evening for the Sandwich islands, where she will spend the summer vacation.

From the report of the Surveyor of Customs forwarded last evening to Washington it appears that the collections for the past year show an increase of $462,787 71, or thirty-eight per cent over the returns of the previous year.

Randolph Weber, a young German engaged as barkeeper at St. Paul on the Meramec, put an end to his existence yesterday, it is supposed on account of unrequited love. He was found dead in the woods with a bullet wound in the temple.

Three more companies were reported to the Insurance Department yesterday as doing a wild-cat business: The U. S. Mutual Accident Association, of New York; Howard Aid and Endowment Association, of Indianapolis; Northwestern Mutual Benefit Association, of Detroit.

Dr. Cronin, Secretary of the Free Dispensary, furnishes statistics of infant mortality, the high rate of which is due to bad ventilation, the use of milk chemically decomposed, improper, use of soothing syrups, insufficient supply of cool water and overfeeding with starchy ingredients.

The St. Louis County Democrats met yesterday and fixed July 15 for the holding of primaries. The Congressional candidates were on hand, accompanied by a delegation of city statesmen. Resolutions were offered recommending that the Democrats of the county take no part in the election of a member of Congress for the district. They were tabled, however. The Legislature was condemned for dividing the district.

BANKING CHECKS.

How Dishonesty May Be Found Out in Financial Concerns.

The statement made on Friday to a POST-DISPATCH reporter by Mr. T. A. Stoddart, cashier of the Third National Bank, to the effect that if a bank clerk wanted to steal there was no way to prevent him, has occasioned no little comment. The admission certainly was a frank one, as it discloses a weakness in the management of banks that may well alarm depositors and others who do business with banking institutions. The question naturally follows from Mr. Stoddart's statement, "Can no effectual check be placed upon bank officials to prevent a repetition of Oby E. Owen's dishonest practices?" A POST-DISPATCH reporter this morning made it his business to obtain an answer to this question from representatives of several of the large financial concerns of the city. One well known bank president is of the same opinion as Mr. Stoddart. He says that bank clerks are necessarily entrusted with great moneyed responsibilities. It won't do to make them strip every evening after business hours, as is done with the employes in the Government mints to prevent them carrying away money or other valuables. Besides there are so many different ways of stealing open to a bank clerk that it is impossible to detect him till the money is gone. The proof of this is that every one of the bank clerks who have been found out has had an entirely original method. No, this gentleman thought the only way to secure the bank from being robbed was to make certain that the men employed are honest. "But," suggested the reporter, "there is an old proverb to the effect that every man is honest until he is found out." "Well," was the answer, "we have to take that risk." The next gentleman called on is the cashier of a prominent North St. Louis bank. He thought the simplest way to prevent thefts like those which Owen perpetrated was to make each man take a week's or a fortnight's vacation, whether he wanted to or not, at Christmas and again during midsummer. This would allow a minute examination of his books, and anything wrong could be quickly discovered. Owen, this gentleman stated, never would take a vacation, even though urged to do so by his superior officers, but stuck right to his window all the time. He knew, of course, that if he went away his robbery would be detected right off. The enforced vacation system struck this second gentleman as a very good one, and he hoped his brother bankers would adopt it. A third bank director was approached. When made acquainted with the object of the reporter's call, he said that he considered the statement made by Mr. Stoddart absurd. "The idea of telling me that it is impossible to prevent a bank clerk from stealing. Now, I am not a bank cashier myself, but I have been connected with my own bank for a number of years. I don't know that we have any special system of watching our men, but I do know that we have never lost a cent by a dishonest clerk or other employe. Still it is quite possible that some one may be playing the same game on us that Owen worked so long and successfully at the Third National. I have thought of a plan which if put into general operation will serve as a check upon dishonesty in banks. It is the plan now followed in the City Treasury. It is very simple and has to recommend it that it has been successful. You know that when a man, say from the Collector's office, brings a deposit to the City Treasury, the teller there gives him three receipts. One of these he keeps himself, one is left with the City Auditor and the other is deposited in the Comptroller's office. So that the record of the daily receipts at the City Treasury is kept in three offices at once. Now, it would be a very easy matter for the receiving teller of every bank in town to give to each depositor a triplicate receipt, one to be kept by the depositor himself, one to be filed with the cashier and the other to be laid before the President and Board of Directors at their daily meetings. This is in my judgment the very best plan that can be designed, and is a complete answer to Mr. Stoddart's statement.

SPORTING SUMMARY.

Racing, Base Ball, General Notes, Aquatics and Other Sports.

At Chicago, yesterday, the starters in the Nursery Stakes for two-year-olds, one mile, were Miss Woodward, Vis-a-Vis, Ascender and Lucy B. The latter was a slight favorite. Ascender won easily in 1:58¾; Miss Woodford second. In the two-mile heats for all ages the starters were: Dodette, Iosco, Clara D. and Windrush. Pools before the first heat sold. Clara D., $100; field, $25. The favorite won by three lengths, Iosco second, ten lengths behind the third horse, Windrush. Before second heat pools sold: Clara D., $100; field, $40. The favorite captured the heat and race easily. Owing to muddy and dangerous condition of the track, further racing was postponed until to-day.

At Long Branch, yesterday, the five-eighth mile for two-year-olds was won by Black Gal, Fairfield second; time, 1:04. Amazon won the one mile for three-year-olds; Blenheim second, Bouncer third; time, 1:46½. The 1¼ miles was taken by Sweet Home, Warfield second; time, 1:58. Parole won the 1¾ miles, Hilarity second, time, 2:26. In the seven-eighths mile Little Pall came in first; Sir Hugh second, Clarence third; time, 1:28¾, best on record. The 1¼ mile hurdle race was taken by Frank Short in 2:21¾.

At Coney Island, Matize won the ¾-mile, Mary Warren second, Belle of the North third. Time, 1:30¾. Prospect took the ⅞-mile, Ida B. second, Monk third. Time, 1:16¾. In the one-mile, Vanguard won, Bonheur second. Time, 1:45¾. In the 1¼-mile hurdle Gift won, Delaware second.

At the Island Park, Albany. N. Y., yesterday, Clemmie G. won in the 2:29 class in straight heats. Time, 2:24, 2:23¾, 2:25. In the 2:23 class, Early Rose was the winner.

BASE BALL.

The Alleghenies, of Pittsburg, and the Browns meet in a regular championship game at Grand Avenue Park this afternoon. Both teams will present the strongest nines. All arrangements have been made for the accommodation of the largest crowd of the season. Game called at 3:30 p. m.

The West Ends, of this city, defeated the Sedalias at the latter place yesterday by a score of 7 to 6

At Buffalo—Buffalo 13, Providence 4.

At Detroit—Detroit 13, Troy 3.

NOTES.

The police closed the pool-rooms at Long Island City yesterday.

At Boston, yesterday, the 10-mile running race was won by Steele in 54:25.

The St. Louis Reds were defeated by the Watch Factory Base Ball nine, at Springfield, Ill., yesterday. Score 8 to 7.

The Carondelet Gun Club held its first shoot in the new park, on Sunday afternoon. The shooting was good, P. Weber winning the medal.

The race between Laycock and Boyd, for £200 a side, on the Lee, 3½ miles, was won by Laycock yesterday by three lengths. Boyd was the favorite.

The trotting mare Proteine died of pneumonia at Columbus, O., yesterday. She had a record of 2:18¾, and her owner once refused $30,000 for her.

Arrangements have been made for a wrestling match, to take place here between John McMahon and Duncan Ross. McMahon, who has a very good record, has arrived in the city, and yesterday issued a defi to Muldoon or anybody else.

DIAMOND CHIPS.

The St. Louis and Alleghenies cross bats this afternoon at Sportsmen's Park. There is every prospect of an enormous crowd being present.

To-morrow the Louisville nine will appear once more upon the scene and will meet the Browns for the eighth game of their series. The trouble between the clubs is now over, and it is to be hoped that the visitors will receive nothing but courteous treatment. In fact, those present should make it an especial point to show how well-behaved a St. Louis crowd can be under peculiar circumstances.

GRAND JURY CRANKS.

A Frenchwoman's Scheme of Blackmail—A Mother's Delusion.

The grand jury is often called on to investigate charges which, while they have no foundation in fact, at the time they are presented look very plausible and truthful. This judicial body is made the means of many blackmailing schemes in this way. One case of fraud of this kind which was very hard to detect and which occupied the jury's time was that of a Frenchwoman. Until the last session a good-looking, dark-skinned Frenchwoman, about 40 years old and elegantly dressed, went regularly before the grand jury with a complaint. She stated that she had been robbed and wanted the parties indicted. She told a straight story of the affair and impressed the jury with her air of candor. She stated that her trunk had been broken into and robbed of diamonds to the amount of three or four thousand dollars. In each instance she gave her suspicions as to the identity of the thief, and the deductions she drew from the circumstances nearly convinced the jury. After investigating a charge made against the landlady of a fashionable boarding-house and finding no truth in it, the jury informed the police of the affair and it was investigated. Nothing was found which would substantiate the woman's story. On the contrary it was very apparent that her trunk had not been broken open and that she had lost nothing. After that the jury refused to listen to her charges and the character of the woman became known as a blackmailer. In one instance she inculpated a prominent lawyer of the city. The police threatened her with arrest. This was about six months ago, and since that time she has not troubled any grand jury with her presence. She is still in the city, as her stately form may be seen on the street on any pleasant day.

An odd case of hallucination is that of an old lady of about 60 who regularly appears before the jury a few days after it has convened. She tells a most pitiful story about the murder of her son, a young man of twenty-two years, her only support. In each case her story had such an air of truth that the jury, until informed, listened to her tale. She told of her son, who had been an employe of the Laclede Glass Works, being murdered by the foreman of the place, then demanded his indictment. Her story invariably affected some of the jury to tears and they would patiently listen to her. This old woman has appeared before fifteen grand juries and only left off coming about two months ago. She would seat herself in the ante-room and wait until she was sent for. She would tell her story and go away apparently satisfied. The fact on which her story was based was this: Her son had left home one Sunday morning for a holiday, and when near the Glass Works on Broadway he met the foreman. The two men had a quarrel and the young fellow was struck but not seriously hurt. A few days afterwards he died, and since that time the mother has believed that the foreman is her son's murderer. A Coroner's inquest was held and it was shown that the young fellow died from some disorder. He was a fine young fellow, and his mother's only support. She went cazy on the subject and has for the last four years asked for revenge. She did not come before the last jury, and it is presumed that she is either sick or dead.

A Double Retreat.

The annual retreat of the Christian Brothers' community attached to the college at the corner of Eighth and Cerre streets closed at noon yesterday. More than forty members of the order were in attendance during the retreat.

At its close the brothers removed in a body to the site of the new college at Cote Brilliante, where temporary quarters have been erected. The old building on Cerre street has been purchased by the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad, and was yesterday vacated by the Christian Brothers, who have made their home there since 1849. Work on the new college at Cote Brilliant is being pushed with the utmost speed, and the building will be ready for the reception of pupils very early in the fall.

THE ROGUE'S MARCH.

A Classic Biography of Crittenden in Iambic Pentameter.

Written Expressly for the Post-Dispatch.

Our Governor sat in his library chair
Reviewing his past with anxious care,
To find in its story the particular feat
To which in truth he owed his seat.
A brainless scion of a brilliant race,
No inherited gifts had won him his place;
At school a dunce, his career at college
But rendered more plain his aversion to knowledge;
Of the State's dull youths the dullest by far,
He next essayed to degrade the bar;
Untrammeled by law, by sense unrestricted,
The bench he amazed, his clients convicted.
Thus year after year he ran his course
By steady progression from bad to worse—
Proud to be witless, of his ignorance vain,
Happiest in making his idiocy plain,
Free from conviction, in politics pliant,
Behold him at length a partisan giant!
The call of his country he could but heed,
And cried with the loudest: "'Tis right to secede!
The partnership formed by our great revolution
Clearly provides for its own dissolution."
(Dull as he was—past all comprehension—
He'd clearly no share in this invention;
To charge it upon him would be most absurd:
He'd stolen the idea, he'd cribbed every word.)
But his uncle now spoke; he quickly was schooled,
And his secession ardor as rapidly cooled.
Compared with the North, the South was but weak,
And the chance for success not far to seek.
In sectional strife the North had the might,
And therefore the South couldn't be right,
Was a lesson soon taught our politician,
Who straightway secured a Union commission
And found in his pay and unearned promotion
The highest reward of his patriot devotion.
Of his warlike exploits, the record, though brief
(The shooting of Zimmerman being the chief),
Goes far to establish the time-honored rule,
A tyrant's a compound of traitor and fool.
To Themis and Mars alike a disgrace,
Peace, one would think, had ended his race,
But if from her service he's never beguiled,
His Goddess forsakes not her favored child.
Of dullness the slave from his natal hour,
Her gifts he receives in an endless shower.
From tent to Congress she bids him now pass,
And challenge the world—a paragon ass.
But the truthful muse just here must note
That yet again he had changed his coat.
In the war, as we've seen, the South he betrayed;
Now hoping still further himself to degrade,
To the cause of the North he turned renegade,
And swore, by his honor, a mistake had been made.
In all he had done, in all he had said,
In the fights he had fought, the forays he led,
To the cause of the South he'd ever been true—
As would plainly appear upon calm review
Of his part in the war—now happily ended.
His native defect, so exquisitely blended,
To weaken a cause necessarily tended.
"As your foe," he maintained, "alone could I aid you;
"Had they but known me, they'd gladly have paid you
"To win to your side my incapable arm,
"For it's the cause I espouse that I'm able to harm."
The force of this reasoning could not be denied,
And now with Democracy see him allied.
Republicans chuckled with sardonic glee,
To see him enrolled as their enemy,
For his argument made it exceedingly plain
That now he'd fight for them—and not fight in vain.
Well did they know, by experience taught,
He hurt only those for whom he fought,
But the Democrats blind, and impelled by fate,
And mighty Dullness's implacable hate,
Added his name to their Governor's roll,
Increasing thereby the Republican poll.
Promoted at last to this lofty estate,
It's not strange that this fool grew wildly elate;
Proclaimed his intention to at once rid the State
Of all th' ills which had so cursed her of late.
First he would capture or kill the bold bandit—
Restore to the rope of the law the chief strand it
Had lost in the hands of weak predecessors,
Who never were more than wordy professors
Of the ruler's high art—to him goddess-given,
While they to acquire it had fruitlessly striven.
The State of Missouri shouldn't harbor the wretch
Who'd be harried and hunted to the hands of Jack Ketch.
But the days grew to months with the bandit uncaught,
And the Governor great to frenzy was wrought.
Should he be defeated in this glorious cause—
His maiden attempt to maintain the laws?
This query was followed by an ominous pause,
As of his failure suggesting the cause.
At last left alone, with tears nearly choked,
The aid of his goddess he once more invoked.
Rejoiced to see good sense overthrown,
And his favorite child again all her own,
Great Dullness left her home in his head,
And congenial shadows around him spread.
At once revived in his native air,
The Governor swelled in his office chair
(Which never yet he'd been able to fill
Through lack of knowledge and governing skill).
The goddess, touched by his pitiful case,
Herself filled out the empty space,
Thus crowding her pet in his seat of state,
Who fondly imagined he had grown great.
What passed between them remains a mystery
Though the sequel's known in the State's sad history.
Whatever he learned in that blissful hour
Of communion close with the guardian power
Which had blessed his birth and crowned his age
With an infamous place in history's page,
He never thereafter wasted his time
In seeking to fetter or uproot crime.
His help being deadly to every cause
Th' attempt to uphold only broke the laws.
To dress it in phrase lexicographic
His practice in crime was homeopathic,
"A hair of the dog is good for the bite"
And he'd commit murder to end a fight.
Outlaws in his State were not tolerated,
And Jesse James he assassinated.
Murdered, I say, and murder's the word—
For facit per se qui facit per Ford.
If murderers had but their just reward
How long would the Governor 'scape a cord?
But my muse's province is plain narration—
Let readers indulge their hot indignation.
Theirs is the privilege to task the creature,
Examine his crime in its every feature.
I only hold up for the world's execration
Th' official who bought assassination.
The crime accomplished, our Governor sighed—
There yet was another who his power defied;
And alarmed by the people's righteous ire
Another assassin he dared not hire.
His goddess too from his sight had fled,—
Resumed her throne in his empty head,
And now he's seated in his library chair
Naturally wondering how he'd get there,
Painfully planning some new endeavor
To make his name infamous more than ever.
Now his eyes light up with a baleful gleam—
The dead presage of some hellish scheme
To link Missouri to a fresh disgrace.
After all that I've done, to hold my place,"
'Twas thus his traitorous revery ran,
Will require new friends and a new plan.
Men honest and able can be found by the score
Who are anxious the State's repute to restore.
But familiar with crime, I now must be bold,
And stickle at nothing some office to hold,
For spite of all bribes Frank James is still free,
And his liberty's fraught with danger to me,
Great risks do I run, deprived of all station,
If called to account for the assassination.
No trust have I held I have not betrayed,
No faith have I kept in one single trade.
No man in the State dare call me his friend,
Yet friends I must make who've money to spend.
But, known as I am, where shall I find 'em;
And if I succeed, how shall I bind 'em?
But is there no class yet left me untried?
I've Cabell deceived, to Lancaster lied.
Misled by the Knapps, and counseled by Hyde,
Sound public opinion I've always defied.
Still I'm not dismayed, though friendless and lone;
If my heart be corrupt my head is of stone.
One weapon is left me in the famed Johnson law—
Its possible service I only foresaw.
'Men are born gamblers,' even ministers know,
And because I might use it I didn't veto
A measure I thought by far too severe.
My way lies before me unmistakably clear.
If I pardon the gamblers now lying in jail
I'll secure their influence with the canaille,
And make me once more their candidate
'Gainst honest men, whom I naturally hate."
The soliloquy ended, and the pardon signed—
An infamy like which 'll be hard to find—
Our Governor calmly retired to rest,
Like a virtuous man by his country blest.
But, doomed in his dreams his fate to learn,
His sleep was troubled by an image stern,
With brow severe and of stature grand,
Bearing sword and scales in either hand,
The fact that to Justice he was a stranger
Increased his sense of impending danger,
Caused his flesh to creep and his blood run cold,
As she pointed him to a scroll unrolled.
"Poor mortal, who boasts of his empty head,"
In sorrowful accents the figure said,
While a halo bright illumined the room.
"Repent if thou canst, while I read thy doom:
Thy race is run and thy degraded name
Shall thus be noted in the roll of shame;
A heartless idiot from thy earliest youth,
A stranger alike to honor and truth,
To bring a proud State under thy control.
Her outraged laws rest on thy soul.
In striving to make of her freemen slaves
Thou'st pandered to vices of reckless knaves.
Therefore to all future time thou shalt be known
A kicked-out Governor of base renown."

THE FAIR ELECTION.

Mr. Filley has Resigned, Mr. Green to the Contrary Notwithstanding

Charles Green, President of the Fair Association was seen, by a Globe-Democrat reporter yesterday, just after Judge Boyle had declared the election of Green and his directory illegal and had appointed August 5 as the date for a new election. Green was, as usual, confident of success, and stated that he would put the same names before the stockholders as he did at the previous election, confident that the people would support them. The Globe-Democrat reporter asked him whether Mr. E. A. Filley's name would appear on the ticket. This question was very pertinent, inasmuch as Mr. Filley had resigned all the positions to which he had been appointed by Mr. Green, as previously stated in the POST-DISPATCH. Green made answer, as reported, that he would place his whole ticket in the field, with Mr. E. A. Filley, included and addded, "There is no truth in this newspaper talk that he has resigned."

Mr E. A. Filley was seen this morning at his office on Main street. When asked whether he had seen Green's reported conversation, Mr. Filley said:

"I was told about it, but I have not seen it."

"Green says that all this talk about you having resigned as a member of the executive board and as superintendent of the cattle department at the Fair is newspaper talk, and is without truth."

"Well, I say that I sent him my resignation of these positions, as I told you before."

"But he declares he did not get them."

"Well, they were left at his office. If he did not receive them it is very curious. I certainly resigned. I ought to know, and I am sure of that fact."

"And you intend to stand by your resignation?"

"I certainly do. I would not have resigned if I had not so intended."

"Do you think that Green got your resignation?"

"How do I know! It was delivered at his office. I have heard, however, and by good authority, that he has taken my name from the head of the cattle department, and that he has placed Mr. David Clarkson in the position. Now, that is one of the positions which I have resigned. The official programmes are being printed at Daly's and you can see for yourself, if you get one."

"Green says that he will put you on his ticket. Will you take the place?"

"It is too soon to answer that question. It depends on what the ticket is. All I know is that I have resigned, as previously stated."

The readers of the POST-DISPATCH will remember that Mr. Filley, who had been a consistent friend of Green through all his fights, had resigned because Green had treated him in an overbearing manner which no member of the directory could stand.

THE Missouri River at Benton has been higher than known for years, but the floods are subsiding. Dispatches from Boonville announce the river falling at that point. Here the water has risen several inches since yesterday, but from present indications it will not reach the high water mark of 1881. A rapid decline will soon set in.

LOUISVILLE, July 2.—President Hughes and a lively gang of members of Branch 23 were on deck at the Marine Engineers' Association headquarters this morning, and the subject of the explosion aboard the snagboat H. A. Woodruff was up. All kinds of theories were advanced and argued, and the discussions all ended without accomplishing the replacement of a single rivet in the damaged boiler. The blackboard announced that Engineers John Chenault and Franklin J. Parker, of Branch 31, at Nashville, had been expelled for violating the rules of the order by signing the application of C. Carroll to have his license raised from second to first engineer without the assent of the branch.

NATIONAL HARNESS-MAKERS.

A Constitution Drafted—Second Day of the Convention.

The second day's session of the National Harness-Makers' Association was called to order by President Hoban at 11 o'clock this morning. The committee appointed at yesterday's meeting to draft a constitution submitted their report. The document provides that the name of the association shall be the National Harness-Makers' Benevolent and Protective Union. It shall consist of a Supreme Council and subordinate unions who shall acknowledge the authority of the Supreme Council. The officers of the Supreme Council shall be a President, a first and second Vice-President, a Supreme Treasurer, a Supreme Secretary and three Arbitrators. The Supreme Secretary shall give bond in the sum of $1,000, and shall receive a salary of $250 a year. The Supreme Council shall hold one meeting annually on the first Monday in July at a place designated at the preceding session. Delegates from subordinate councils to the Supreme Council shall receive mileage at the rate of three cents per mile each way, and $3 per day during the session. The question of strikes by subordinate unions is left for decision with the Supreme Arbitrators. If these officers decide that the strike is unjustifiable, the strikers will have to resume work and cannot renew the question until the expiration of three months. The session closed at 10 o'clock. To-morrow evening the association will hold an open meeting in the large hall of the Turners' [illegible]. Mayor Ewing has been invited to be present to deliver an address to the delegates.

THE HIGH WATER.

The Mississippi Will Soon Begin to Fall.

The Situation on the Levee—North St. Louis—Not Much Damage.

The river is booming. All along the banks from Portage, in St. Charles county, to the bottom lands south of St. Louis, the waters have broken bounds and gone on voyages of discovery over the fields of grain and the pasture lands. The low country about East St. Louis, especially the lake region to the north of that flourishing suburb, is to-day one great fresh water sea. The break in the Madison Levee, although not a very serious one, has let in a great volume of water into the system of ponds in Madison county, and the back water out of Cahokia Creek has come back to meet this and add its total to the inundation. People who have gone over the ground estimate the total extent of the submerged country at 20,000 acres, and state that three-fourths of this is swamp land at its best. It does not appear that the break at the head of Jabouret Slough has increased greatly. The river rose six inches during the night, and consequently a great deal more water is going into Madison county. Back in the bottoms, on the Illinois side, the greatest excitement is felt over the break. People are getting ready for a repetition of last year's flood. Many in the exposed region are moving their household goods back to the high grounds, and these scenes continually bring back to mind the exciting times of last year's high water. Although the river rose six inches last night, it would not be even yet within the danger line, were it not for the condition of the dikes. Taking things at their worst, the most experienced river men do no believe that there can be a further rise of more than six inches, and it would take eighteen inches more water to do very much damage in the bottom. On the Missouri side the Columbia bottoms are getting very moist. Corn fields and potato patches, watermelon grounds and kitchen gardens, with which this fertile region teems, are all under water, and a great deal of damage will be done in the little German settlements along the shore. In the lumber region in North St. Louis the Eau Claire Company has been flooded out, and several of the great piles of lumber are toppling over. The whole is safely surrounded by booms, and there is no danger that any of the timber will get away. The other yards are still dry, being well diked. The Wabash trains cannot get into the Biddle street depot, which is insulated. Further south the water is very high at the foot of Morgan street being in on the ground floor of Manion's ironworks and the grocery on the other corner. Along the levee about the bridge things presented a most thoroughly drenched appearance. All the cellars are of course full to the brim of water, and the railroad tracks are submerged. Roustabouts, in the water, are working to and fro between the boats and the shore. Across the river, in East St. Louis, a great many people have been compelled to leave their homes by the overflow of Cahokia Creek.

NORTH ST. LOUIS.

The situation in the inundated district north of North Market street has not materially changed in the past twenty-four hours. It is feared that six inches additional advance will work serious damage to the foundation of the new Water-works at Second and Grand avenue. The water now only lacks a few inches of submerging it, and a large force of men are working night and day to keep it out. The rise last night put the water up to the wharf level between Bremen avenue and Angelica street, and this morning a force of men were put to work to keep the water out if possible. Hundreds of piles of lumber in the Eau Claire yards at the foot of Salisbury street are falling over, but none has yet been carried off on the stream, as it has all been boomed in. It is said, with the loss of trade and trouble of fixing up after the flood, that the Eau Claire Company will lose $12,000 or $14,000.

ALONG THE RIVER FRONT.

At noon the water was still rising, and the long, yellow waves were lapping closer and closer to the sidewalk of the river front. At the foot of Morgan street the water was quite high, and foot travel along the levee was altogether interrupted. North of the bridge there is a great deal of freight and miscellaneous merchandise partly in the water, and roustabouts are working all along the front. South of the bridge everything is in shipshape, and ready for any amount of high water. Across the river the north and south ends of East St. Louis are largely submerged and the water is creeping every hour to more conquests in the lowlands. Houses and stables are partly under water, the yellow flood covering the floors and sweeping out small movables, to catch them in eddies further down.

News from the break in the Madison levee is very meagre. More of the dike has caved in and been washed out, and last night some ten thousand additional acres were covered. This time a much better quality of farm lands was covered and the damage will be much greater than was originally anticipated. It is expected that the river will reach its highest stage to-day, as it is dropping at the up river points. Unless it goes from a foot to a foot and a half higher than it is now the total damage will not be very great. Once the river breaks over its banks, however, a rise of half a foot is enough to cover great stretches of bottom lands. The farmers of Portage, in St. Charles county, are catching a great deal more water than their legitimate share. Both of the rivers are bank full and the triangle of bottom land between the Mississippi and the Missouri is entirely under water from Portage down. The St. Louis county bottoms are also suffering severely to-day, the additional rise bringing a great deal of new ground under water.

A Bracing Temperature for the Fourth of July.

The Signal Service Department is entitled to the thanks of this community for the pleasant weather accompanying the Fourth. Last night a sudden change in the temperature was experienced, the thermometer dropping down to 63°. The early morning was cold and chilly, remaining so until nearly 9 o'clock, when the thermometer began a steady appreciation. At 10 o'clock the sun came out and 70° were registered. By 12 o'clock the mercury had become heated sufficiently to register 76°, and at 2 o'clock this afternoon 78°. At 3 o'clock the atmosphere was assuming its wonted warmth and the thermometer registered 80°.

THE CHAMPION OF CHECKERS.

A Talk With Mr. Wyllie, the Best Checker Player in the World.

Something of His Life—His Great Games—The Player Anderson—Exhibition Games Here.

Mr. James Wyllie, the champion draughts or checker player of the world, arrived in the city this morning and registered at Hotel Barnum. At 9 o'clock to-day a reporter of the POST-DISPATCH was ushered into the gentleman's room, where he found Messrs. E. F. Gross and F. Schindler the committee on reception, quietly entertaining their guest. Mr. Wyllie is about 65 years of age, small and stout, very hard of hearing, and with a sturdy Scotch countenance. His hair is snow-white and he wears a white beard underneath his chin, His forehead is high and thoughtful, and his blue eyes twinkle with suppressed merriment. On the first finger of his right hand he wore an immense seal ring, while a similar ring was fastened to his necktie. When the reporter had been formerly introduced, he inquired.

"It is understood you are a native of Scotland, Mr. Wyllie?"

"Yes, sir. I was born in Dundee, but my last place of residence was Leven, Fifeshire. I came from Kansas City here, at the invitation of your local checker-players."

"Tell me something of your history."

"Ah," said the old man, shaking his head, "there is much to tell, for I have led a nomadic life, utterly devoid of incident. At a very early age I was apprenticed to a carpet weaver of Dundee, with whom I mastered the trade. Afterwards I shouldered a pack and became a peddler. Tramping all over Scotland and England I had considerable leisure time and naturally employed the evenings at games of draughts, at which I soon became proficient."

"When did you become a professional checker player?"

"What does he mean?" inquired Mr. Wyllie, turning his head toward Mr. Gross.

"He wants to know when you began playing checkers for a business," shouted Mr. Schindler.

"Oh, I can't remember that," responded the player; "it is too long ago. I recollect that at the age of sixteen I had acquired some notoriety as a player of draughts, and about that time I commenced to admire Anderson, who was then champion of the world and whose rules are to-day the recognized authority. It became the one desire of my life to play a match game with Anderson, and at the age of eighteen I had the honor of meeting him. We played. He beat me, of course, but praised my methods and encouraged me to go ahead. Frequently afterwards I had match games with him, but not until twelve or fifteen years did I ever beat him. During his later life I won games from him often, but he was a grand old man."

"Is Anderson playing now?"

"I don't know," he replied, with a merry twinkle; "he is dead. But I reckon his spirit is wrestling with the game. Anderson was the best checker player the world ever saw."

"Who else did you have match games with?"

"Martins, of Cornwall, England. He was an excellent player, but I beat him. In 1875 I crossed the Atlantic, and have been in this country ever since. In Boston I played with Wm. Barker, the champion of America, and in New York City I met the best players in a series of 53 games, of which number I won fifty, and three were declared draws. On my return to the East this fall, I shall be pitted against C. R. Barker, of Boston, a brother of Wm. Barker."

"What is the purpose of your visit to St. Louis?"

"I have been invited to play a series of exhibition games, and will commence to-day at the Fire Department headquarters. My games will be played from 3 to 6 and from 7 to 11 p. m. every day during the next ten days, and I believe it is arranged that on alternate days I shall play at the rooms of the Chess, Checker and Whist Club, corner of Sixth and Pine streets. Everybody interested in the game is invited."

"Where have you played in this country?"

"In nearly all the prominent Northern cities, such as Boston, New York, Philadelphia and the West. I spent some time in Canada, playing at Toronto, Montreal, Quebec, St. Mary's, London, Stratford and other places."

Mr. Wyllie would be selected on the street for either a peddler or a foreign sailor, but on removing his hat he shows unmistakable evidences of intelligence and some refinement.

Irish Women's Sacrifices.

London Letter to Philadelphia Times.

A touching exhibit was seen at the stall of the Countess of Mayo, in the shape of a quantity of plate, many of the pieces being beautiful specimens of ancient silverware. All these were heirlooms, sent direct from the hands of Irish ladies in distress in this their hour of pressing need. A novel feature of the entertainment was a concert in a hall adjoining the gardens, at which many distinguished amateurs appeared. The most interesting of these was Lady Arthur Hill, the sister-in-law of Lady Bective, and composer of that wondrously popular song, "In the Gloaming." Lady Hill has just written a companion song to this first so-liked one, called "In the Moonlight," which I may say bids fair to prove as widely current as the other, if the enthusiasm attendant upon Lady Hill's singing of it the other day be a test for an opinion. Two very charming American ladies, Mrs. Ronalds and Lady Colin Campbell, sang more sweetly than bald words can convey at the concert. A very large sum was netted by the two days' proceedings, and fired by the success of the undertaking and moved by the worthiness of the charity the Working Ladies' Guild, aided by distressed Irish gentlewomen, are to have a sale in ten days' time at the old-fashioned house on the Fulham road, which is occupied by the guild and which has just been decorated throughout by William Morris. Crescent House, as it is called, shelters the tapering fingers of gentlewomen whose art needlework is little short of marvelous, throwing quite into the shade the more hastily executed handicraft of the Royal School of Art Needlework at South Kensington. I have often seen specimens of the work at work at William Morris' shop in Oxford street, and to see is to admire. Many art treasures and historic relics will be shown at Crescent House when the public is bidden. These beautiful things are loans from the collections of the Earls of Warwick, Denbigh and Waldegrave, the Countess of Caledon and Lady Eastlake, the latter a familiar name in every circle where art is honored.

"I WANT AN INDORSEMENT,"

"And I Want You Fellows of the Police Board to See That I Get It."

The Maxon-Crittenden Interview at Last Given to the Public.

Gov. Crittenden and Gov. Crittenden's organ in St. Louis seem to be making a combined effort to fasten upon Mr. John H Maxon the responsibility for the pardon of the gamblers. Taking one of the Governor's most recent interviews as a text, a POST-DISPATCH reporter this morning called on Mr. Maxon and asked him if he did not believe that the time had come to tell what he knew about the pardons—at least to give the public the conversation which took place between Gov. Crittenden and himself on the Thursday evening before the pardons were issued. After some demur Mr. Maxon stated that he would detail the interview. Said he: "When Gov. Crittenden came into my house that evening I met him with the remark that we had five of the gamblers in jail. From rumor on the street, from remarks dropped by different people, and from my knowledge of Bob Pate's shrewdness, I was particularly anxious to find out whether he had been promised a pardon before he pleaded guilty. I knew that one of two things was true: either Pate, when he pleaded guilty, entirely overestimated the amount of evidence we had against him, or he pleaded guilty with the distinct understanding that he would soon be at large. Pate knew how our misdemeanor case against him broke down, and I am pretty certain that he knew how weak our case was. This made me very anxious to find out what Crittenden was going to do."

"Did you tell him, as he says, that there was no case against Pate?"

"I did. I told him, though, that the evidence against the balance of the convicted gamblers was more than enough to insure conviction. Now, if it is any satisfaction for Gov. Crittenden to quote this statement of mine as an excuse for pardoning Pate, how about the balance? What excuse had he for them? And besides that, Pate himself said that he was guilty, and that, it seems to me, should have settled the matter."

"Is it your belief, Mr. Maxon, that Pate had an assurance of pardon from Gov. Crittenden?"

"I can arrive at no other conclusion, unless I say Pate overestimated the strength of our case against him. And he must have seen in the Torrence case, a similar one that we failed to convict Torrence altogether."

"What other conversation occurred between you and the Governor?"

"We discussed the Hannibal and St. Joe affair, and the conversation then turned upon politics. Said he, 'I understand you fellows (meaning the Police Commissioners) have resolved to have nothing to do with politics.'

"'It is true,' I replied. 'I cannot put any other construction on our oath of office.'

"'That is all very well,' he said, 'but you must remember that Democrats have certain duties which I have a right to demand that they shall do. I am entitled to an indorsement of my administration at the hands of the coming State Convention.'

"'How is the State at large on this question of indorsement?' asked I.

"'Solid,' said the Governor.

"'Then,' I argued, 'what have you to fear from the city, no matter how the party here may feel toward you? It is preposterous to believe that the wishes or demands of the St. Louis Democracy would have any effect against you, if the State at large is solid for you.'

"'Yes,' Mr. Crittenden replied, 'that is all very true, but I want the party in Missouri to be a unit on this question, and I depend on you fellows (meaning the Police Commissioners) to see to it that my enemies here, Lancaster and the balance of them, shall not succeed in sending delegates to the State Convention who will oppose the indorsement of my administration.'

"'Governor,' I replied, 'this is not the way to do this thing. You should be satisfied to let your administration stand upon its merits before the people. I do not consider it dignified or manly to attempt to manipulate an expression of indorsement from the Democratic party of the State. If your administration deserves such an expression from the people of Missouri, you will get it, and it is farcical to imagine that Lancaster or anybody else can prevent an indorsement, unless they have good cause to show against you.'

"To this he simply reiterated his former remark, 'I shall look to you fellows to attend to this matter.'

"After this we had an indifferent conversation, and he spent an hour or two chatting before he left."

"And now about the pardons, Mr. Maxon?" said the reporter tentatively.

"I would not have had any objection to Pate's pardon after we were through with the cases. The Governor has the right to pardon whom and when he pleases, but I think that common courtesy to us demanded, under the circumstance, that we should be consulted before these pardons were issued. The case was this we had a year's hard work behind us, done under the most discouraging circumstances; up to a couple of months ago few people in this town believed that we were really trying to suppress gambling, luck had been constantly against us, and these cases were the first turn in our favor. With one stroke of the pen the Governor ended all our work, and left us in a position where there was nothing left us but to resign if we wished to maintain our own self-respect. Had we continued to hold office the majority of the people in St. Louis would believe that we had gone into a combination to make a farce of the whole gambling prosecution. Nothing would convince the body of the people but that we had gone into an agreement by which the gamblers were to be juggled between the police, the courts and the jail, with the Governor in the rear to let them out as soon as we got them in. To hold the respect of the community we could do nothing but resign. We could not consent to hold such a dubious position before the public."

"And that is the whole story?"

"Yes. And now, like Ed. Simmons, I want to retire into obscurity, away where the interviewer intervieweth not, and reporters cannot break in and report."

The Murders in the Phœnix Park.

From the London World, June 21.

A curious opinion is very prevalent among the lower classes in Dublin about the Phœnix Park murders; and it is worth noting, perhaps, by those who look upon the whole affair as inexplicable. I have it from one who was a patient in Stephens Hospital when the bodies of Lord Frederick Cavendish and Mr. Burke were brought in; and one of the lower classes himself says it is the belief of a very large number of the masses. When Lord Hartington was Chief Secretary to the Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, in 1871, it may be remembered that the Prince of Wales visited Dublin, and that there was a very serious disturbance in the Phœnix Park. The police made a furious and, as some say, a very unprovoked assault upon the mob near the Wellington Memorial, and a vast number of people were badly beaten, including, I think, Mr. T. D. Sullivan, M. P. Lord Hartington was present, and saw the whole affair, which created a tremendous sensation and resulted in the celebrated case of "O'Beirne vs. Hartington." Now, the assassination of Lord Frederick Cavendish is put down by the Dublin lower orders as an act of private revenge upon the Cavendish family. Mr. Burke's fate is believed to have been only incidental. The grudge engendered by the police batons and Lord Hartington's presence consenting to the occurrence was to be at least wiped out, and directly it was heard that Lord Frederick was coming over as Chief Secretary, the private vendetta was resumed and the account finally closed. This is common talk in the Dublin streets. Moreover, the Stephens Hospital patient heard it first from some members of the Royal Irish Constabulary the night of the murders, and hence it is evident that there was an idea in that quarter that Lord Frederick was in some danger from his relationship to Lord Hartington. All this may be mere idle talk, but it makes the affair more nearly resemble the Felton Buckingham business.

Arctic Mosquitoes.

From "The Land of the North Wind."

The one bitter drop in our cup of joy was the monstrous but inseparable curse of Arctic summer life—the mosquito. He abounded, flourished, luxuriated, surpassed himself, out-mosquitoed himself on the Kuloi River. We were at his mercy; our veils, gauntlets, handkerchiefs, flapper, all were a vanity and vexation. To kill was wanton, for to destroy sufficient was impossible. We had foreseen all this, and had even thought of taking, among other things, a woodpecker from home with us to protect our faces while we slept; but one woodpecker would have been a solemn mockery; we should have wanted a fresh woodpecker every five minutes. I suppose these were the historical flies sent to punish the disobedient, obstinate Egyptians; they came fourth in order, and after three grievous plagues—the corruption of the waters, the multitude of frogs and the swarms of lice—had entirely failed.

We are becoming connoisseurs in mosquitoes; we watch them traverse our veils like figures on the slides in a magic lantern. There is the yellow striped mosquito, with a triple fang to his proboscis; there is the brown humpbacked or camel mosquito, with legs of gossamer, who appears to our vindictive eyes to be from two to three inches in length; finally there is the scorpion mosquito, very searching and business-like. We dislike him greatly, for he wastes no time. We know now that leather is a hollow delusion, and armor-plated gauntlets are alone of avail. Sometimes a mosquito comes and kill himself by squeezing between our finger and thumb, sometimes by flying against my flapper. There are moments, but so rare and delicious that I almost tremble to describe them, when we find a mosquito who has anchored himself by the proboscis in our glove—and watch the expression of baffled hatred in his countenance with which he watches the approach of the avenging finger. O, the peaceful, blissful enjoyment of that moment! Sometimes we watch him in his hurried efforts to pierce the glove—he knows that time is all he needs—standing upon his forelegs with his hind legs flourishing in the air while he bores away diligently through the thick leather in his wicked thirst for blood. Sometimes in our frenzy we ensnare a mosquito and get up and trample upon his head. We ask ourselves in hours past endurance why the law of nature should be reversed, and man, the lord of creation, become the prey of savage creatures. We have formed a grave, if impious, resolution; we will take a mosquito by stratagem, pinion him, and with the help of a burning glass, offer him in sacrifice to the Midnight Sun.

A Frenchy Coachman.

Paris Special to New York Herald.

The promenaders in the Bois de Boulogne were scandalized the other day by a violent altercation between a certain Count and Countess and their coachman. They were driving around the lake at the busiest hour of the afternoon when the coachman suddenly got upon the box seat, pulled up the horses and began a long harangue to the surrounding crowd about the meanness and cruelty of his employers. The Countess fainted and the Count vainly tried to throttle the coachman, and the whole party were finally carried off to the police station. There the coachman impudently confessed that the scene had been got up at the instigation of his daughter, who had been the Count's mistress prior to his marriage. The scandal will of course not stop here: we shall hear of it again shortly in the law courts.

DR. HARTER'S

A combination of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of iron that will not blacken the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations.

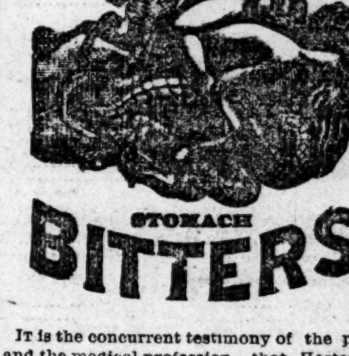

GENTLEMEN: I have used DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this peerless remedy has, in my hands, made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC is a necessity in my practice. DR. ROBERT SAMUELS, ST. LOUIS, MO., NOV. 26th, 1881. 3104 Wash. Avenue.

It gives color to the blood, natural healthful tone to the digestive organs and nervous system, making it applicable to General Debility, Loss of Appetite, Prostration of Vital Powers and Impotence.

Greatest Discovery on Earth!

THE ORIENTAL BEAUTY HERB.

How Turkish Houris and Parisian Ladies Preserve their Beauty.

Returning from the Orient, we offer to the ladies of America the most jealously guarded secret of the Turkish harems. We refer to THE ORIENTAL BEAUTY HERB, or Serkys, which preserves the beauty and freshness of youth to an advanced age, clearing the complexion of all blemishes, and giving it the transparency and loveliness of the rose.

This precious herb, which has remained in mystery, was discovered and presented to the Sultana of Osman I. by a dervish. We need not expatiate upon its wonderful virtues, but will quote from the works of Dr. Paul Lucas, who traveled in Turkey by order of Louis XIV.:

"They told me an infinity of marvels concerning the effects of this herb and assured me that the ladies of the harems who use it appear at the age of forty as fresh as if they were twenty five. My position as physician to the King of France served to introduce me to the widow of Hassan Pasha. I was surprised to see her waited upon by two young women of apparently twenty-five years of age, whereas I knew it was customary for her to be waited upon by old women only. What was my astonishment to learn that both these young women were over sixty years of age, and that they owed their youthful appearance to the use of this herb. Its use also conduces to a full bust, and makes the flesh firm and hard."

THE ORIENTAL BEAUTY HERB is much in use by the fashionable ladies of Paris, as it brightens the eyes, removes sallowness, premature wrinkles, pimples, tan, moth-patches, freckles and other defects which mar beauty. It is not a face powder or lotion, but is taken internally; is perfectly harmless, and gives that crowning glory to women, a skin of Oriental softness and transcendental purity and beauty.

It is said that Ninon de l'Enclos, the Empresses Josephine and Eugenie owed to its use their remarkable preservation of beauty.

It has now been placed upon the market in this country, in prepared packages, at $1 per package; six packages for $5.
